Women dies in crash while eluding car

by DIANE GRANAT

In an apparent moment of panic, Katherine DeRosia turned off her lights and sped down a Lake County Road, fleeing from a man driving a car she thought was chasing her.

The decision was a tragic one, resulting in her death.

Miss DeRosia, 24, of 401 Virginia Pl., Wheeling died early Thursday when her car flipped over several times on Bradley Road just south of Ill. Rte. 176 near Libertyville, Lake County sheriff's police said. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Condell Hospital, Libertyville, at about 1:30 a.m.

A PASSENGER IN Miss DeRosia's car, Alan Hennick, 21, of 65 Carlisle Ave., Deerfield, told police they were trying to elude a man Miss DeRosia had met in a bowling alley that night.

Lt. James Donaldson, investigating officer for the case, said police are not sure whether the couple actually was being chased. Donaldson said the car, driven by the strange man may have been behind the DeRosia car, but not in pursuit. He said the Wheeling woman, suspicious of the man, may have been frightened and sped away.

Donaldson said the couple apparently met the man, "had a few beers" and then "the guy came out and talked to them a while in the parking lot."

Then they left, Hannick and Miss DeRosia apparently thought they were being trailed.

Hennick told police Miss DeRosia turned off the headlights of her car and began speeding when the auto hit some railroad tracks and both rear tires blew.

THE CAR overturned several times and both Hennick and Miss DeRosia were thrown from the auto. Hennick was treated at the hospital and released.

Hennick said the man following them stopped briefly near the accident, then drove away. Police said they received an anonymous telephone call, a man's voice, reporting the accident.

"Right now we are not looking for the other guy," Donaldson said. "We will probably talk to Alan when he's in better shape. If we can, we might try to find the guy to question him about it."

Donaldson said no one seems to know who the man is. Hennick could not be reached for comment Thursday. A person at his home refused to answer questions.

Miss DeRosia, a resident of Wheeling for seven years, was the only child of Joseph H. and Patricia DeRosia. A graduate of St. Norbert College, DePere, Wis., Miss DeRosia worked as a clerk typist for Powers Regulator Co., Skokie.

Egypt shoots down 2 Libyan jets

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt said Thursday its gunners shot down two Libyan jets and destroyed 40 tanks in a day-long battle following a Libyan armored attack. Libya said Egyptian jets bombed villages, killing women and children, and vowed "retaliation in force."

An Egyptian military spokesman said the eight-hour desert battle was the second in three days and followed a Libyan attack on Salum, an Egyptian town on the Mediterranean coast that once was the site of a key World War II battle. He said scores of Libyans and nine Egyptians were killed in a battle Tuesday.

It was the first report of open warfare between Egypt and Libya following years of border tension between the former allies, who once planned to merge in an Arab Federation.

HOURS LATER, Tripoli radio said in a report monitored in Beirut that Egyptian troops still were on Libyan soil, fighting was continuing and that Libya had "only one alternative and that is retaliation in force."

"At dawn Thursday, an Egyptian force invaded the village of Masa'id, killed innocent women and children, and shelled the local schools, hospitals and other civilian installations," the Tripoli radio charged.

The Egyptian spokesman said, "In today's action, Egyptian troops took particular care not to harm the civilian inhabitants of Masa'id."

Libya said Egyptian jets also bombed the village of AlMarjah, "aiming to kill women, the aged and children."

TRIPOLI RADIO said Libyan troops "are continuing to expel the aggressors from Masa'id." Quoting a government spokesman, the radio said the attack was "a direct aggression" against Libya and that Egypt's version of the battle was "a baseless lie and completely false."

The Egyptian spokesman said a Libyan armored column, attacking behind artillery, crossed the border Thursday morning from the Libyan town of Masa'id and advanced on Salum.

"This forced our troops to confront the aggressive forces and chase them to Masa'id and then further west, where more fighting took place between the two sides," the spokesman said.

The Egyptians suffered no losses "apart from a number of soldiers who were wounded when their vehicle was destroyed."

OUR LAND forces managed to destroy 40 Libyan tanks and 30 combat vehicles of various types, and capture 12 soldiers of the 9th Libyan armored brigade and arrest 30 saboteurs," the Flood cleanup the day after begins with mud

by JOHN LAMPINEN

John Lampinen

JOHNSTOWN, Pa.—Mrs. Andrew Shields didn't know where to start Thursday.

"I think it'll take forever," she said, her voice sounding more helpless than the words.

She and her husband had gotten up early Thursday morning at their relative's house to make their way through the maze of torn and closed streets that lead down from the hills to their home.

THEY WERE TWO of the handfuls of people who reappeared, here and there, in downtown Johnstown, Pa., to begin the long cleanup.

And everywhere they appeared, they dug the thick mud off the sidewalks with snow shovels.

It was the first sign of life in this decimated town of 41,000 along the Conemaugh River in western Pennsylvania after the waters from Wednesday's deadly flood in which 47 were killed, had subsided.

BUT WILLIAM H. Fernwalt wasn't doing a lot of cleanup work. He was standing on his porch watching the others shovel mud off their porches and throw furniture onto what used to be their lawns.

Fernwalt is one of Johnstown's oldtimers, a retired radio serviceman, with a heart condition, he explained.

"Everything's just a shambles," he said. "The whole first floor's ruined."

That is where he rents his solitary room, and most of the few pieces of furniture he owns were destroyed by water and mud that left a mark three feet high on the walls of the house, which is a good 10 feet above street level.

DOWNTOWN IN THE business section, where the khaki green helicopters continued to hover overhead, a few workmen were disregarding flood merchandise and trying to clear the walks.

Not all the employes who were supposed to be on the job were there Thursday, however. The roads remained impassable, and 60 percent of the phone service in Johnstown remained out.

The only method employers had of notifying workers whether to come in was by local radio.

At their house just a block from the river, the Shields weren't worried about work. They were worried about their house.

SHIELDS AND HIS brother John worked outside, filling a garbage can with muddy paperback books that had been swept onto the porch.

Mrs. Shields, and her sister-in-law Camille, worked inside but much of the work was walking through the house wondering where to start.

Mrs. Shields had known about the flood danger. She and her husband had lived there for 30 years and liked its proximity to the business district. She had known that in the 1936 flood, a woman drowned on top of the refrigerator in the house while neighbors listened helplessly to her screams.

And yet, Mrs. Shields said, knowing about the danger and living through it are two different things.

"YOU KNOW," she said, "when it happens to you, it's a helluva lot different. You just can't visualize it."

After she and her husband escaped from a room on the second floor where they had been trapped until 2 p.m. Wednesday, Mrs. Shields spent

Tornado victims cope

by TERRY HERSHEY

Norbert Brudzinski Thursday paced up and down his driveway, his hands pressed against his trembling lips.

He walked alongside the contractor taking measurements to determine the extent of damage caused by a tornado that ripped through an exclusive Orland Park subdivision Wednesday night.

But the contractor ignored Brudzinski.

Although Brudzinski and his wife live in a Westmont apartment, the damaged Orland Park home belongs to him.

HE IS RENTING the home to the Kukowski family who will be moving out during the next few weeks. Brudzinsky was planning to move in by the end of summer, but now he is uncertain.

"It could be some time — a long time," he said quietly.

"We were so anxious to move, in," he said. "It's our first home."

But the contractor explained that carpenters and other tradesmen are hard to get this time of year.

While Brudzinski paced, his wife sat perched on a stool in the middle of the driveway, staring into the roofless garage. She never spoke; she only watched.

"I'm just gald no one was hurt," he said as Carol Kukowski, who lived in the house, paused from her cleaning chores to describe the events of the night before.

IT HAPPENED ABOUT 6 p.m. Wednesday when Mrs. Kukowski was on the phone with her niece.

"I was concerned about my niece because her power was out. Suddenly I heard a sound like a big train coming. I don't know if I said anything or just hung up."

"My first thought was to run outside. I just wanted to run away from the wind, but my boys kept begging me to come downstairs."

"By the time we got into the basement we knew what was happening — it was a tornado. We just stood there and screamed at one another.

"Then — bingo — it was over."

IT ALL HAPPENED quickly for residents of an Orland Park subdivision hit by a tornado Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Kukowski looked up from the broom and looked at the now

Sterilization said to rival the pill as contraceptive

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sterilization now rivals the pill in contraceptive popularity among America's white married couples, a new National Fertility Study shows.

Published Thursday in "Family Planning Perspectives," a Planned Parenthood-World Population journal, the study documents a dramatic gain in surgical sterilization over a two-year period ending in 1975.

As of then, an estimated 6.8 million couples had elected sterilization — 3.8 million women and three million men. And 7.1 million said they relied on oral contraceptives.

THE STUDY, fourth in a series funded by National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, was directed by Dr. Charles F. Westoff of Princeton University's Office of Population Research.

The social scientists said 76 per cent of continuously married couples use contraception.

By 1975, the report shows, male or female sterilization was the method of choice for 56 per cent of white couples continuously married for 20 to 24 years (compared with 37 per cent in 1973); 52 per cent among couples married 15 to 19 years (compared with 32 per cent in 1973); and 43 per cent among those married 10 to 14 years (compared with 30 per cent in 1973).

Even among couples married just 5 to 9 years, most of whom are in their late twenties, 32 per cent had chosen sterilization as of 1975, compared with 19 per cent of this group in 1973.

IN ADDITION, to the persons sterilized for contraceptive reasons, another 1.1 million had been sterilized for strictly medical reasons. That makes the nation's total of sterilized people 7.8 million.

Westoff and associates concluded, as of 1975, contraceptive and medical sterilization operations "probably now comprise the most frequent barrier to conception among all married couples of reproductive age."

He attributed a significant part of the sterilization gain among recently married couples to a nationwide trend towards smaller families and earlier family completion.

Factors behind this trend, he said, include the development of new, "technologically simpler" methods of female sterilization and concern about the side effects of the pill and ther contraceptive methods.

Band aid or belly button surgery for female sterilization does not call for an overnight stay in a hospital. Previously, female sterilzation, major surgery, involved an abdominal incision.

Use of inter-uterine device was found declining. Some of these perforated the uterus.

Side effects reported among pill users include strokes, heart troubles, liver tumors and bloating from fluid retention.

Cuba fires on lobster boat

MIAMI (UPI) — A Florida lobster boat skipper sent a Cuban officer overboard and headed full speed for Florida under rocket fire from two gunboats Thursday, stopping only when the Coast Guard urged him to surrender.

"I refuse to stop!" shouted Nick DeNicholo, skipper of the 72-foot fishing vessel Bounty, over his radio with gunfire crackling in the background. "I don't care if they shoot, I refuse to stop!"

But the Coast Guard and DeNicholo's boss, accusing him of "using your head for a hatrack," convinced the angry skipper to give up about 30 miles north of Cuba. He was alone on board with the ship's female cook.

THE LAST WORD from the Bounty was DeNicholo's voice saying, "They've taken my radio." It was the sixth, and most violent, in a series of seizures of U.S. craft by Cuba in international waters in the past three weeks.

President Carter was advised of the seizure aboard Air Force One en route from Charleston, S.C., to Jackson, Miss. Press Secretary Jody Powell pointed out that all the vessels seized previously had been released "within a matter of hours or days."

The 210-foot Coast Guard cutter Steadfast was ordered to make all speed to the aid of Bounty but it was still 150 miles away when DeNicholo heaved to. It was not immediately learned whether the gunboats would take Bounty to Havana or some other Cuban port.

The "super-modern" $300,000 Bounty had just completed a 30-day fishing trip and was carrying 3,300 pounds of crayfish from Central American area waters. It was due at its home port of Key West Friday.

BOUNTY NORMALLY carries a crew of six but DeNicholo had dropped off four of his hands at Grand Cayman en route home. He was alone on board with his cook, Sheila Almquest, when the Cuban gunboats appeared on the horizon about 15 miles off the coast.

The Cubans claim a 12-mile offshore territorial jurisdiction, which the United States does not recognize. Rear Adm. Robert Durfey, commander of the 7th Coast Guard District, said the seizure was "quite serious, especially in view of the previous number of ships seized."

A tape of all conversation with the bounty was made by the Coast Guard and played later for newsmen.

In his first radio call to the Coast Guard, DeNicholo told the Goast Guard that "a Cuban gunboat came alongside and asked me to slow down. One officer jumped on board and ordered me to shut down. But I gave my engines full speed.

"WE HAD A SLIGHT struggle and he jumped overboard."

Durfey told newsmen the Coast Guard was unsure whether the Cuban boarding officer was "pushed, shoved or jumped overboard."

After the officer was picked up by his gunboat it fired shots over the Bounty and turned away briefly, then resumed the pursuit. The Coast Guard advised Bounty to keep "heading north until the Cubans overtake you."

A little more than an hour later DeNicholo radioed:

"A second PT boat just pulled up. . . they're firing some kind of shells some kind of rockets over us now..."

THE STACCATO SOUND of gunfire was clearly audible on the Coast Guard tape.

"I'm being fired on by Cuban gunboats," DeNicholo continued.

"I'm refusing to stop. I don't care if they shoot, I refuse to stop!" he shouted.

More gunfire came in over the radio and the skipper said, by way of explanation, "That's them, that's them — they're firing over the Bounty."

At this point the Coast Guard told him:

"It's going to be your decision but we highly recommend that you stop . . . For your own safety, we would recommend you stopping."

"Roger, Roger," replied DeNicholo. "I'm stopping."

As Cuban rockets and bullets were zooming over his ship DeNicholo was reprimanded on the radio by his boss for not surrending to the first Cuban gunboat 15 miles north of Cayo Jutias.

More rain for Johnstown; 47 bodies found so far

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — The threat of more flooding in the devastated Conemaugh Valley failed to develop Thursday night but an additional half-inch of rain fell on the area already staggered by the worst catastrophe to hit Johnstown since 1889.

The National Weather Service has issued a flash flood warning for Cambria, Indiana and Somerset counties — three of the areas hardest hit earlier during a seven-hour period by nearly nine inches of rain — but cancelled it shortly after 8 p.m.

The new rain deposited a foot of new water in some areas of mud-caked downtown Johnstown, adding to the misery of weary searchers and the survivors who wait to hear some word of missing loved ones.

"THE RAIN HAS hampered some of the operations," said James Mock, chief of police in suburban Richland Twp.

A total of 47 bodies have been recovered and authorities said the toll would rise as bulldozers push their steel snouts into stacks of debris deposited when a 12-foot wall of water roared down the valley early Wednesday.

"We may be finding bodies for the next month," said Chief Deputy Coroner Art Keiper. "Some may never be found."

Keiper supervised the makeshift morgue at the East Hills Elementary School and hotels and supermarkets had donated ice for the bodies stacked in a boys' locker room.

GOV. MILTON SHAPP estimated damage in this medium-sized steel town alone would exceed $200 million. President Carter promised to send help and declared seven counties in th region a disaster area.

An estimated 10,000 families have been affected by the flood and 3,000 refugees are now housed in emergency shelters. Among them, 400 elderly persons were evacuated from a Johnstown high rise.

In Johnstown, a city of 42,000 rebuilt after it was completely destroyed in the great flood of 1889, residents were at work with bulldozers and shovels, rebuilding again.

"You don't find anyone sitting around and crying," said Johnstown Police Chief Ed Piurkowsky. "They will probably rebuild Johnstown better than it was before the flood."

Shapp said Carter's action would allow local officials to start buying badly needed food, emergency equipment and medical supplies. He said he plans to provide another $1 million in state aid.

"It's too early to tell how much money we will need," the governor said. "We just have no way of assessing the total damage."

Piurkowsky, watchind bulldozers scrape a two-foot layer of mud off the city streets, said, "The river isn't a threat now. The water has receded so there is no chance of overflow again."

Hospital worked in water and dark

by John Lanpinen

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — R.F. Seifert didn't look much like a hospital administrator Thursday.

He was dressed in work pants and a loose shirt and rubber boots caked with mud.

It was appropriate. In many ways, Lee Hospital in downtown Johnstown, Pa., didn't look like a hospital any more.

BUT IT functioned like one.

And while the lower floor still carried the musty stench of Wednesday's floodwater, Seifert could begin to see things turning up for the first time.

"The situation is a lot better than yesterday," he said. "We feel we can restore normal operations. The situation is stressful, it's been difficult, but the hospital continues to operate."

There are three hospitals in the 41,000-population community of Johnstown, about 60 miles east of Pittsburgh. Lee Hospital is closest to the Conemaugh River. It is just slightly more than three blocks from the river, and it was hit hardest by this, the city's third major flood in less than a century. At one time Wednesday, it had been rumored that Lee would evacuate its patients.

It was caring for 476 patients when the storm struck, sending muddy water to the top of the steps at the entrance and into the lower floor, knocking out the hospital's cafeteria, central storage and radiation areas as well as electrical power and communications.

THURSDAY, AS National Guardsmen and emergency volunteers continued to wait for errands in front of the building, the signs of destruction remained.

Cars in the parking lot had been tossed about like toys and now three rested in a pyramid on top of each other.

The brick wall that had lined the lot was strewn throughout the area with the rest of the twigs and mud and debris.

Inside, physicians and nurses walked through darkened corridors, with the electrical power lighting only strategic areas of the building.

"THE PROBLEM has been, since the very beginning, lack of power and communication," Seifert observed. "We were working in the dark using flashlights and small generators to help us get through that initial period."

But, he added, there had been incredible help from others. Some citizen's band radio enthusiasts brought their units to the hospital to offer some semblance of communication, and small power generators were donated. The military flew in others. General supplies were delivered to the top of the building by helicopter.

The hospital received only about a dozen patients due to the flood. Most complained of stress or minor cuts and bruises. Those with major injuries had been taken to other hospitals.

Of the original 476 patients in the hospital, 97 were released or transferred Wednesday. Seifert said he expected another 50 to 100 to be released today. The remaining patients were being consolidated on floors with sufficient power and access.

By Monday, Seifert added, the hospital should be able to accommodate new patients.

"It could have been worse," he said. "It was just people trying awfully hard and a lot of cooperation.

"And, there was some degree of luck."

Cleaning up all that flood mud

the day crying.

There had been no warning, she said. By the time they heard neighbors' screaming and yelling outside, the water already was seeping into the house. Before they could get up the stairs, the water was up to their chests.

"It was just too late to come in and grab anything," she recalled.

SO IN ADDITION to every stick of furniture on the first floor, the carpeting, the drapes, the new, paid-up car in the back yard, the water heater and the pipes and everything in the basement, they also lost almost all their clothes, including her mink coat, a fur jacket and another expensive coat.

She walked from the kitched into the living room and back into the kitchen with a dish she didn't know what to do with.

There is very little insurance. It won't come close to paying for the damage to the house, Mrs. Shields said. It will cover almost none of the furnishings.

Egypt downs 2 Libyan jets; Libya promises retaliation spokesman added.

"The Libyan air force then attempted to bombard out positions, but were confronted by our air defense forces, who shot down two of the raiding planes," the spokesman said.

"In view of the Libyan air force intervention, the Egyptian air force had to take part in the fighting in order to protect our land troops," the spokesman said.

The spokesman also reported a four-hour artillery battle on Tuesday in which 20 Libyan military vehicles "were destroyed along with the soldiers riding in them." He said nine Egyptian soldiers were killed in Tuesday's fight.

"EGYPT CONSIDERS the Libyan government responsible for the current tension and declares that the actions of the Egyptian armed forces today were in reply to Libyan aggressions and aimed at safeguarding our western border," the spokesman said.

Egypt deployed troops along its western border a year ago under orders to prevent the infiltration of Libyan saboteurs.

Egypt had accused Libya of inciting last January's food price riots, in which about 100 persons were killed or wounded, and backing a fanatic Moslem group, accused of attempting to overthrow the government of President Anwar Sadat.

Dozens of bombing incidents in several Egyptian cities during the past two years were blamed on Libyan agents, including an Aug. 14, 1976, explosion at Alexandria rail station, which killed eight and injured 51. Several Libyans have been sentenced to death or long jail terms.

Logan's 'other side' one of caring

by KEN VANDERBEEK

Marion Logan has two sides.

In court, he has been branded a "brutal murderer" and a "hoodlum" for allegedly killing 51-year-old Phyllis Anderson of Buffalo Grove.

But to his friends he is quite a different person. Not an accused murderer, but a quiet man who loves to draw portraits and work with youngsters near his home at 345 W. 69th St. in Chicago.

BEFORE HIS arrest for the June 13, 1976, murder of Mrs. Anderson, Logan was living in the 69th Street home of his fiancee, Mary Ann Williams; her uncle, Joseph Powers; and Carol Franklin.

"I just can't believe he (Logan) could have done the killing," Mrs. Franklin said. "That night he was out trying to stop the others who were throwing rocks. I was even standing outside at the time and I didn't see him doing nothing violent."

But Assistant State's Attorneys Thomas Callum and Harry Wilson see it differently. They say Logan was part of a rock-throwing gang of black youths that attacked the Anderson car demanding $10. The car had been forced off the Dan Ryan Expressway during a heavy rainstorm and became stuck near a flooded viaduct on 69th Street.

They say Logan, 31, fired four or five shots into the Anderson car, killing Mrs. Anderson and wounding her husband, Leo.

BUT MRS. FRANKLIN thinks it is all a lie.

"Marion was making $13 an hour as a construction worker in a local iron union," she said. "Why would he go for $10?"

But state's attorneys again think differently. Thursday they submitted into evidence a cartridge belt they said belongs to Logan. The belt, they said, contained bullets matching manufacturer markings on shells found near the Andersons' car.

Chicago policeman Paul Sparizanski told the jury he found the cartridge belt in Logan's basement June 14, 1976, the day of his arrest.

Despite this damaging evidence, Logan, true to his reputation at home, sat quietly and without expression in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge James M. Bailey.

LOGAN HAD planned to marry Miss Williams in July of 1976, but the murder charge changed their plans, Miss Franklin said. They had dated two years and had been engaged two months before his arrest.

"Marion never had it in for anybody," Mrs. Franklin said. "He's a good worker and he was going places.

"Besides, he was very good with teen-agers when he lived here," she said. "He used to work with groups of teen-agers because he felt most black kids needed more than just the ghetto. He taught them there was more to life than violence."

Rita Hayworth surprised by applause

• RITA HAYWORTH, 58, went the traditional movie star route when she was invited to the Tiffany Theatre in Hollywood to receive an award for her contribution to motion pictures. Wearing a black-sequined dress, she arrived at the theater in a limousine Wednesday night and seemed pleased to find the crowd applauding. "I've been playing golf to keep trim," she said when one spectator commented on her looks.

• JANELLE COMMISSIONG, the new Miss Universe, says she'd like to talk to Uganda's IDI AMIN to find out "why he does the things he does." The 24-year-old Trinidad-born beauty, and the first black woman to win the title, has ambitious plans for her reigning year. She plans to visit racially-troubled South Africa and hopes to meet with Amin.

Trend in Russ ties good: Carter

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — President Carter, cautioning that the United States and the Soviet Union have not reached "a basis for complete mutual trust," Thursday said there still is a positive long-range trend in relations between the two super powers.

Carter made the appraisal in a carefully worded speech on the first stop of a two-day swing through South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana. He told cheering crowds, "It is really nice to be down South where I belong."

Pres Sec. Jody Powell said the speech, which is expected to be closely examined in Moscow, was designed to reassure Kremlin leaders the administration is seeking "enhanced cooperation" and intends no threats with its emphasis on human rights.

CARTER CHOSE A meeting of the Southern Legislative Conference to give the speech.

He said the trend in U.S.-Soviet relations in the past 30 years "has been positive" despite some setbacks, and his administration is trying "to obtain lasting solutions to East-West differences."

"If this chance to emphasize peace and cooperation instead of animosity and division is allowed to pass, it will not have been our choice," he said.

"We are trying for the first time, to reach agreements that will not be overturned by the next technological breakthrough," he said. "We are trying, in a word, for genuine accommodation."

The President said his administration has "no delusions about the nature of the world as it really is," and that "the basis for complete mutual trust does not yet exist."

DESPITE TEMPERATURES in the mid 90s, about 2,000 persons gathered along an airport fence to greet Carter upon his arrival in Charleston. Thousands more lined a motorcade route into the city, wavinghand-painted signs welcoming him back to his native southland.

More than 500 persons jammed the municipal auditorium to hear the President's talk and he received prolonged applause.

"We have made some progress toward our goals," Carter said. "But, to be frank, we also hear some negative comments from the Soviet side about SALT (the strategic arms limitation talks) and our more general relations.

"If these comments are based on a misconception of our motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear. But if they are merely designed as propaganda to put pressure on us, let no one doubt that we will persevere."

THE SPEECH broke no new ground on human rights but Carter made an apparent effort to dispel the distrust and anger Soviet leaders have expressed over his stand on the issue.

"There are no hidden meanings in our commitment to human rights," he said. "Our policy is exactly what it appears to be: The positive and sincere expression of our deepest beliefs as a people. It is addressed not to any particular people or area of the world, but to all countries equally, including our own."

Carter said while his administration's negotiations with Moscow will be guided by "a vision of a gentler, freer more bountiful world" it is well aware of realities.

"The basis for mutal trust does not yet exist," he said. "Therefore the agreements we reach must be anchored on each side in enlightened self-interest."

Hanover Pk. man killed in air crash

A 22-year-old Hanover Park man was killed Thursday when a twin-engine private plane he was piloting caught fire, exploded and crashed in a field near Plano, Ill. Kendall County Sheriff's Police said Craig H. Torrenga, a mechanic for Smith Airplane Sales Co., Aurora, apparently was testing the plane when it caught fire in mid-air and crashed. He was alone in the plane when it crashed about a mile and a half southeast of Plano. Deputy Richard Miech said Torrenga was pronounced dead on the scene by Kendall County Coronor William Detzler. The crash is being investigated by the National Transportation Safety Board, the Federal Aviation Administration and the Kendall County Sheriff's Police.

Vandals hit burial vaults

Two companies which supply burial vaults to area cemeteries said Thursday they had to increase security because of vandalism during the vault workers' strike. A Vanguard Vault Co. representative at Gary, Ind., said about five vaults have been destroyed in cemeteries. The representative said the company will not deliver vaults to cemeteries unless the cemeteries provide security for them or plan to use them immediately.

A Metropolitan Vault, Inc., representative at Melrose Park said the brakeline of a delivery truck was cut Wednesday and the truck was involved in a minor accident. As a result, he said the firm will not supply vaults to cemeteries which were not customers before the strike. Vault workers went on strike a month and a half ago. The walkout has delayed as many as 1,500 burials.

Stock theft suspects held

A judge Thursday ordered Thomas Koss, New York City, bound over to a federal grand jury in a $2 million stock certificate theft. Ross, 50, waived a preliminary hearing in U.S. District Court. FBI agents arrested Ross and Thomas Stellato, 53, also of Brooklyn, Tuesday at the O'Hare Airport Hilton Hotel. Agents recovered an estimated $1 million in stolen stock certificates from the pair, then found another estimated $1 million in certificates in a locker at the airport. A third suspect, Jerome Davidson, who lives near Miami, Fla., still was sought. Agents said Davidson arranged a sale of "counterfeit" stock certificates with an undercover FBI agent June 10. The buy was supposed to be in Brooklyn July 14, the FBI said, but was changed to LaGuardia Airport and then postponed until Tuesday in Chicago when the New York blackout occurred.

Executive questioned in death

A former Chicago business executive charged with killing his business partner in Mount Carroll has been questioned about the 1975 beating death of Mary K. Sheldon in her Near North Side apartment, police said Thursday. Thomas Atkinson, 47, an executive of the management consultant firm, Atkinson & Associates, is being held in the Carroll County Jail in Mount Carroll, charged with murder in the June 26 shooting death of his business partner, Donald Martin, 31, Freeport. Chicago police homicide Commander Joseph DiLeonardi said Chicago police investigators traveled to Mount Carroll several weeks ago to interview Atkinson about the Sheldon slaying. "He decided to talk to us upon the advice of his attorney," DiLeonardi said. "He won't take a lie box (lie detector test). Our hands are tied."

Miss Sheldon's partly clothed body was found in the living room of her 23rd-floor apartment in Newberry Plaza on March 7, 1975. Miss Sheldon, 29, was working as a $17,000-a-year consultant for Atkinson's firm, which then was located in Chicago. Police speculated she may have known her killer, because names of tenants were not listed in the lobby of her apartment building and admission to the building was tightly controlled.

Aleman attorney files motion

An attorney for reputed crime syndicate figure Harry Aleman filed a motion Thursday charging the chief prosecution witness in Aleman's upcoming conspiracy trial is incompetent and should not be allowed to testify. Louis Carbonaro, Aleman's attorney, said in the motion that prosecution witness Louis Almeida, a prison inmate, "is a habitual criminal . . . a confessed hired assassin, armed robber, home invader, thief." Almeida also was the chief witness against Aleman in his murder trial for the 1972 slaying of Teamsters union steward William Logan. Aleman, 38, was acquitted by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Frank J. Wilson. Carbonaro said Almeida's testimony in that trial "was disregarded as unworthy of belief."

Fiscal problems clearing: Bakalis

Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis said Thursday that Illinois has greatly improved its fiscal health over last year by holding the state's spending down to the second lowest growth level in nearly 10 years. In his June fiscal report, Bakalis said the state is not completely clear of fiscal troubles, "but the growth in revenues coupled with a slowing in the increase of spending shows that there is real cause for optimism." Since 1969, when the income tax was enacted, the state has steadily increased its spending growth, Bakalis said. But fiscal 1977 compared favorable with fiscal 1974 because the state held its spending growth to just over $350 million. Bakalis said other factors for his optimistic view of the state's financial condition include the state of the general funds deficit for fiscal 1977, which ended June 30. He said the deficit was less than half that of the previous year, dropping from $189 million in fiscal 1976 to $74 million in fiscal 1977.

CONSTRUCTION OF A GreatAmerican Federal Savings office has begun in Arlington Heights on Sigwalt Street, between Arlington Heights Road and Evergreen Avenue. William C. $100,000 track at Recreation Park

Site urged for skateboard rink

Recreation Park has been recommended by Arlington Heights Park District administrators as the best site for a proposed $100,000 skateboarding track.

If built, the facility would be paid for by a private developer who would lease the land from the park district in exchange for a percentage of the profits, Park Director Thomas Thornton said.

"We have concluded that the only existing park that could be used for a skateboard track would be Recreation Park," Thornton said in a memo to commissioners.

THE AREA SUGGESTED is a paved section between the swimming pool and baseball diamond at the park, 500 E. Miner St. It now is used for basketball games.

The park board is waiting to hear from two developers who have expressed interest in the project, Thornton said.

Even if plans were made soon, he said the facility probably would not be completed until spring.

Commissioners several months ago asked Thornton to investigate the possibility of constructing a skateboard track at one of the parks in response to a request by a group of teen-agers.

BUT THORNTON SAID commissioners have not yet designated Recreation Park as the site for the proposed track.

If built at Recreation Park, the facility would be 3,000 square feet and could be enclosed for year-round use at a later date.

He estimated it would cost $75,000 to $100,000 to construct.

Thornton said in making the site recommendation he considered available space, condition of surrounding property, possible conflicts with other uses of the site and parking space.

He said that although existing parking at Recreation Park is "very inadequate," more parking along Douglas Avenue could be developed in the future.

City still not sold on night racing

Arlington Heights may be reconciled to the idea of night racing at Arlington Park Race Track, but officials in Rolling Meadows still are not wild about the idea.

Meeting Thursday with Joseph Joyce, president of Arlington Park-Washington Park race tracks, aldermen expressed concerns about traffic and an influx of "riff-raff" into the community.

And though some aldermen still feel they were slighted because race track officials did not notify city homeowners early this month of plans to apply for night harness racing, they seemed willing to try to work out potential problems.

ALD. WILLIAM AHRENS, 2nd, said he has no objections to night racing and has received no complaints from his constituents.

"We all bought homes out here knowing that thing is there and we've learned to live with it. I don't know what the hang-up is," he said. But Ald. Billy K. McMinn, 2nd, felt the city was ignored by track officials.

"I don't know of anyone in Rolling Meadows who was notified," he said. "I didn't hear about it until after the meeting."

He was referring to a meeting race track officials had with homeowners from Arlington Heights and Palatine before they applied to the Illinois Racing Board for 71 night harness racing dates from Washington Park in Homewood, which was destroyed by fire last year.

THE BOARD REFUSED to grant the request and will consider Arlington Park's application Aug. 1 along with those submitted by other race tracks.

Arlington Park has applied for 71 racing dates from Oct. 10 to Dec. 31.

Tom Rivera, public relations officer for Arlington Park, told the aldermen he invited area homeowners from a list given him by "a person who is knowledgeable about Rolling Meadows." He said Rolling Meadows residents were not excluded intentionally.

Earlier this week the Arlington Heights Village Board voted to allow night racing in return for an undetermined tax on race track operations. Board members also were satisfied with a traffic plan that would close the exit on Wilke Road and require all traffic to exit on to Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road.

Neville looking forward to first garbage hearing

by BILL HILL

Dick Neville plans to be first in line when the Village of Arlington Heights holds public hearings this winter on a new garbage contract.

He probably will not be alone.

The current contract has been a constant source of rage for both businessmen and residents who dislike its requirements and pickup rates. The 5-year pact, which gives the Laseke Disposal Co. exclusive rights for garbage disposal in Arlington Heights, is scheduled to expire at the end of 1978.

NEVILLE, who is president of Video III, 2515 S. Clearbrook Dr., canceled service with Laseke in January, and after having his garbage hauled for a short while by Browning-Ferris Industries, he was issued a ticket by village officials. On Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court, Associate Judge Seymour S. Price ordered Neville to start service again with Laseke or pay a $50 fine.

Neville says he may appeal that ruling.

"Laseke doesn't offer what I consider a reasonable amount of service to meet my nteds. I only need half of what I had to buy," Neville said.

"I also have found them (Laseke) to be sloppy, spilling a lot of the garbage," he said.

Also, Laseke has refused to restart service unless Neville pays $25 to get a trash container placed at Video III.

NEVILLE ALSO objects to what he calls a "double standard" in the village's enforcement of its garbage ordinance.

Global Van Lines, located across the street from Video III, also contracted with Browning-Ferris rather than Laseke until April when the company was issued a ticket. But Global was not fined Wednesday after the company's general manger, Ralph Houk, told village officials the company has most of its refuse hauled away by a recycling company.

However, Houk said Thursday that Global employes take "unrecyclable" refuse to a garbage dump — a practice which Neville insists is a violation of the village ordinance giving exclusive rights to Laseke.

"It looks to me like the village is using this law and interpreting it in two different ways. I think the decision against me was based on an unfair interpretation," Neville said.

Indian culture group sets powwow

by NANCY GOTLER

Twenty-five years ago John Lotter was an Elmwood Park Boy Scout leader with a mission to promote the Indian way of life.

Today the small group he started has grown into a 50-member organization called the Mascoutin Society that sponsors semiannual powwows and has an emergency fund for needy Indian students.

The group will hold an authentic powwow at Recreation Park in Arlington Heights the weekend of Aug. 26, complete with camping in teepees and native dance contests.

LOTTER, WHO WILL be 75 next month, said the organization has changed, but its goals have remained the same.

"We try to create an interest in American Indian costumes, dances, handicrafts and general lifestyle,' he said. "We feel we are accomplishing our goal and contributing to better understanding of the Indian culture."

Only a few of the society's members are full-blooded Indians, Lotter said, but as many as 40 per cent of the 200 participants expected at next month's powwow will be descendants of Indians.

The dancers make their own costumes, complete with beads and shawls, after thoroughly investigating the clothing worn by Indians who inhabited this part of the country, he said.

Priests stand firm in face of death

El Salvador's 47 Jesuit priests Thursday moved into heavily guarded church schools, rejecting a terrorist demand they leave the country by midnight or face death. The rightist "White Warrior Union" claimed responsibility for the shotgun death of a Catholic priest last May and said it would consider the Jesuits "military targets" if they were not out of the country by July 21. Church officials said they have no intention of bowing to the Union's threat, and will not budge from El Salvador.

The government set up roadblocks where policemen and National Guardsmen searched all vehicles entering this Central American capital for guns or explosives. Police units were also posted outside government offices, buildings, public parks, and most public schools and colleges. The main door at the Jesuit-run San Jose College near the center of the city, usually opened, was closed. Reinforcements were sent to the Basilica de Guadalupe, on the western outskirst of the capital on the main road to Guatemala City. Security forces have been guarding the Basilica for the past month. El Salvador's Jesuits and other liberal Roman Catholic clergymen have been under fire for their support of peasants' demands for land reform.

Ethiopia crushes Somali troops

Ethiopia said Thursday its troops had crushed and captured thousands of Somali soldiers and implicated the United States in the escalating desert war. Cuban medical experts reportedly arrived in Addis Ababa. The Ethiopian news agency said Ethiopian soldiers, including troops from its peasant army, "have crushed thousands of Somali troops" in a series of desert battles in the last few days. It said they had captured large numbers of "regular Somali soldiers," including three colonels, a major, a lieutenant and at least 23 other soldiers.

The agency also said Ethiopian troops had captured large supplies of weapons including American-made M16 rifles which "clearly shows that American imperialism, on the basis of its secret deal with the reactionary Mogadishu regime, has begun indirectly to arm Somalia to violate the territorial integrity of Ethiopia." Since Ethiopian strongman Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam crushed a coup attempt and consolidated power earlier this year, Ethiopia increasingly has accused the United States of fostering a series of plots to overthrow the Marxist regime.

Elections under way in Sri Lanka

Nearly six million Sri Lankans Thursday voted in national elections which could bring down the world's only woman prime minister, Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike. By the time the vote is tallied Friday morning, more than 90 per cent of the country's 6.5 million eligible voters — or more than 5.8 million persons — will have voted for 750 candidates running for 167 parliamentary seats at stake. Mrs. Bandaranaike's chief rival, 71-year-old opposition leader J. R. Jayewardene, predicted his party would win 90 to 100 seats "at a minimum" in the country's first nationwide poll in seven years. Most political commentators have predicted victory for Jayewardene's United National party.

How to remove fake fireplace ash

The Consumer Product Safety Commission Thursday ordered a major public information campaign to advise as many as a half-million consumers how to get rid of fake fireplace ash made of asbestos. The agency made final its ban on the ash as well as on spackling compounds containing the same mineral. Both products have been ruled hazardous because they can put asbestos, a known cancer causer, into the air where it ban be inhaled. The commissioners approved a detailed set of instructions for do-it-yourself removal of the ash from fireplaces and told the agency's staff to mount a media-based information campaign to spread the word.

The agency estimates 300,000 to 500,000 consumers brought fake fireplace ash during the last decade. Virtually all ash sold to be sprinkled on fake fireplace logs or in grates beneath them was made of asbestos. Removal instructions call for consumers to lightly wet the ash with a spray from a pump bottle containing water and a few drops of detergent. The remover should wear a face mask and washable clothing during the process, scoop the wetted-down ash out with a shovel or other device, place it in a double plastic garbage bag, wipe up the fireplace floor and tools with damp paper towels and dispose of them as well in the bag.

Replay tapes, Hanafi jury asks

The Hanafi Muslim murder-kidnap trial jury asked Thursday that taped telephone conversations obtained during the takeover of three buildings last March be replayed to help them in their deliberations. Judge Nicholas S. Nunzio said the 10 tapes — eight of them submitted by the prosecution — would be played in a locked courtroom. The telephone conversations between Hanafi leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis and his followers and others run about two and a half hours. The jurors, 10 women and two men, also asked that Nunzio's instructions on the government's conspiracy charge be repeated to them.

Guerrillas rout Angolan troops in border town

WINDHOEK, South West Africa (UPI) — Pro-Western guerrillas firing rockets, mortars and machine guns routed Angolan forces from the southern Angola border town of Cuangar, tribal authorities and refugees reported Thursday.

More than 100 Angolan troops died, and hundreds of others deserted and sought refuge across the border in South West Africa to escape guerrillas roaming the jungle, South African officers said.

Radio South Africa reported from the border region that Cuban reinforcements have been sent to three southern Angola towns surrounded by guerrillas — Rocadas, Calueque and Periera de Eca.

THE FIGHTING erupted Wednesday morning when 200 members of the National Union for the Total Liberation of Angola attacked the government outpost along the Kavango River, which divides Angola and South West Africa.

Kavango tribal authorities and refugees who crossed the fast-flowing river to safety said many soldiers of Angola's pro-Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola died in an ambush after the attack began.

Maj. Gen. Wally Black, commander of South African troops here, said about 400 refugees fled Angola.

"A large percentage of the refugees who crossed the border were supporters and troops of the MPLA," he told Radio South Africa. "It is significant they fled to South West Africa and not into the bush which is controlled by UNITA (guerrillas)."

THE JOHANNESBURG Star quoted reliable sources in the Kavango tribal homeland as saying National Union forces went on a rampage and killed civilians indiscriminately in their villages.

South African defense force headquarters in Pretoria said all the refugees were being housed at the border village of Nkurenkuru. They were being questioned, officers in Windhoek said, but no decision has been reached on what to do with them.

South African Defense Force headquarters in Pretoria Thursday said: "Once again, as in the past, the South African Security Forces have had to play a humanitarian role in helping the members of the local population in Angola who were forced to flee for their lives from the chaotic conditions which have reigned in Angola for some time."

Vance to push indirect Israel-Arab talks in U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance may follow up Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's Washington visit by seeking to promote indirect contacts between Israel and Arab nations at the U.N. General Assembly, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The Israeli statesman wound up his final day in Washington by seeking support for his Middle East peace proposals from influential congressmen and AFL-CIO chief George Meany, and professed himself satisfied with President Carter's announced support for reopening the Geneva Mideast convention before the end of the year.

Initial Arab reaction to Begin's peace plan was largely negative, but U.S. officials said they looked to Vance's Middle East visit in August to clarify the views of Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian leaders.

SHOULD BEGIN'S announced opposition to negotiating with representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization still threaten the Geneva Conference, Vance may seek to stimulate indirect Arab-Israeli exchanges at the United Nations, sources said.

A State Dept. spokesman, meanwhile, said an announcement can be expected "shortly" on Israel's request for approval to buy tank engines and transmissions in the United State for production of its revolutionary Chariot tank.

In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi said Begin, "is attempting right now to obstruct peace efforts, either by delaying the Geneva conference or talking about alternative methods.."

In Damascus, the official radio said the Middle East crisis was "back to square one."

In Lebanon, a PLO spokesman said, "The PLO is convinced that Begin is just maneuvering and trying to buy time."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., the only senator of Arab descent, said: "By not allowing the PLO to take part he has set up a condition in advance knowing the other side won't accept — scuttling the peace talks in advance."

BUT SEN. JACOB Javits, R-N.Y., a strong supporter of Israel, said the proposal should help the peace-making process.

"I believe it sets the stage for actually going to Geneva without preconditions as to the West Bank, the Golan Heights, the Palestinian Arab refugees," Javits said. "The restriction concerning the PLO is understandable. The PLO continues to vow the dismemberment of Israel."

Begin also made it clear he considered his trip a success from the viewpoint of presenting U.S. leaders with Israel's requests for continued arms support.

Weakness of proof cited in wife's murder appeal

Schaumburg housewife Marlene Swimley did not conspire to murder her husband but, instead, sought to "discourage" a killer hired by her teen-aged son and his friends, her attorney said Thursday.

Arguing to overturn his 36-year-old client's conviction, Louis Carbonero told the Illinois Appellate Court that testimony from state's witnesses in her trial "was so improbable and contrary to human nature" that it failed to prove her guilt.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin Aspen had sentenced Mrs. Swimley to three to nine years in prison last year after a jury found her guilty of trying to hire a "hit man" to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 48. She is free on bond pending the appeal.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested in 1974 after she passed a $100 downpayment to a state's attorney's investigator posing as a crime syndicate professional killer.

Carbonero said Mrs. Swimley kept the meeting, arranged by her 13-year-old son by a former marriage, because she believed it was with a "conman taking advantage of the kids." She offered less money than demanded, he said, and created "obstacles" she believed would make it impossible to kill her husband, then on duty in Germany.

Justice Henry W. Dierenger questioned Mrs. Swimley's actions Thursday. "If she thought he really was a con-man she shouldn't have gone" to the meeting, he said.

"She shouldn't have," Carbonero replied. "But she did."

JUSTICE DIERENGER also quoted from a taped conversation of the meeting in which Mrs. Swimley said she wanted her husband "evaporated."

"Evaporated. I think that's quite clear," he said.

But Carbonero hammered on the "improbability of an intelligent woman getting teen-agers" to solicit a hired killer. "Who'd believe teenagers have access to hit men?" the attorney said.

Assistant Cook County State's Atty. Patrick O'Brien said the testimony "demonstrated the efforts and expense of time and money" Mrs. Swimley spent in "planning" to murder her husband.

CARBONERO ALSO complained that he was not allowed to call Swimley as a "hostile" witness and said the man should not have been allowed to sit in on the trial because he was later called as a rebuttal witness for the state.

Swimley contends the murder plot stemmed from efforts of persons linked with the crime syndicate to obtain his five-acre Schaumburg property to "build condominiums and make a fortune."

Although Swimley has filed for divorce, the petition is being withheld pending the criminal appeal. The court has ordered Swimley to pay his wife $400 a month alimony, make $350 monthly payments on their house and provide her a car until the divorce is granted.

The Appellate Court has not set a date for handing down a written opinion in the Swimley case.

Jaworski keeps open mind on influence-buying probe

HOUSTON (UPI) — Leon Jaworski, turning from prosecution of the White House to investigation of Congress, Thursday said he expects to make full disclosure of any South Korean influence-buying in congress.

If politics or personalities interfere with that, the 71-year-old semi-retired lawyer said he will "appeal to the American people" or resign his new job as chief investigator for the House Ethics Committee.

Jaworski said a resolution of independence voted Thursday by the committee should insure him complete freedom.

"IT IS QUITE strong and to the point from the standpoint of independence. I don't want anyone to tell me that I cannot subpoena a certain witness if I feel that witness is important to the investigation.

"I'm not looking for anything along this line. At the same time, we don't know what we may run into and we want to make certain as best we can."

Jaworski said he has no opinions as to the investigation's length or outcome.

"I have no way of appraising it because I don't now what exists (in the way of evidence)."

But he commented on unattributed reports that House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Majority Leader Jim Wright might become targets.

"I DOUBT THAT I would have accepted this matter had it not been for the urging of both of them. They were both pledging complete independence to me. I can only say this, that we can't prejudge, we don't know, but any inferences of their own involvement seems one . . . that I certainly would not accept for the time being."

Unlike his special prosecutor role in Watergate, he said, his new job will be gathering information for and making recommendations to the committee.

Lake water support gains in federal plans ruling

Two proposals that would assist suburban efforts to get Lake Michigan water are gaining support in Washington, the chairman of the Illinois Water Resources Commission said Thursday.

State Rep. Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park, said his group this week found congressmen from Illinois were interested in the establishment of a long-term, low-interest loan program to help local communities pay for construction of water lines to Lake Michigan.

Williams said he is hopeful that in January the Congress may approve legislation enabling the loan program.

SUCH A LOAN program would be of importance to the Northwest suburban towns that already have been granted an allocation of lake water by the state. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Palatine are trying to determine how to pay for their water lines.

Williams said he hopes towns that did not receive a water allocation this year will get one next year as a result of a proposed amendment to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the allocation of lake water.

The commission is asking attorney generals of the Great Lakes states to agree to change the storm water runoff formula required by that court decision. Instead of requiring Illinois to allow for the maximum amount of runoff that went into the lake before the diversion of the Chicago River, the commission wants to use the average runoff.

This would free about 130 million gallons of lake water a day, providing water for 800,000 people using groundwater supplies. Williams said this would enable all of the towns wanting to use lake water to get an allocation.

An engineering report on the runoff is scheduled for completion Aug. 14, and a meeting is being planned in September with the attorney generals. The government of Canada also must approve the revision.

She's happy her tax bill only doubled

by DEBBE JONAK

While other Northwest suburban residents were still gasping Thursday over increased property assessments, Elaine Salzmann smiled with relief at finding that hers had only doubled.

Just the day before, it looked as if she and her husband would have to pay $3,183.30 in taxes on a Wheeling Township vacant lot that jumped from $2,032 assessed value to $27,875 following Cook County's latest reassessment.

But Thursday the county admitted error and assured the Salzmanns they would receive a revised assessment of $4,655 and revised tax bill of $300 or $400.

"IT MAKES YOU feel like, gee, am I lucky. But it really isn't that lucky to have your bill doubled, I guess," Mrs. Salzmann, 1821 Verde St., Wheeling Township, said.

Last year the Salzmanns paid $204.98 in property taxes on their one-acre vacant lot, Clarence and Prairie streets. When they received a bill July 15 for $3,000, Mrs. Salzmann began calling county and township offices.

Wednesday she located the right office and the right man — Nick Muros, assistant supervisor of the county land department. Muros checked into the situation and within a few minutes discovered a clerical error which could have cost the Salzmanns more than $2,500.

IN TRANSFERRING information on the property into the computer, someone mistakenly set the property value at $2.75 a square foot, he said. That is the commercial rate which was used to evaluate the property of a furniture store in front of the Salzmanns' residential property.

"It's a human error," Muros said, adding the county will revise the assessment and send the Salzmanns a new bill.

However, Muros said he does not understand why they did not call him when they received notice of the proposed assessment back in February.

"I explained to Mrs. Salzmann that back in February she received notice of the assessment value that clearly showed it would take a big jump," he said. "We could've cleared it up then with no problem at all."

Mrs. Salzmann said she and her husband did not pay much attention to the notice. "I guess this all could've been avoided if I'd read the proposed assessment," she said.

Study needed on RTA: Thompson

It will be several months before Gov. James R. Thompson has the information he said is needed to determine if counties should have the ability to withdraw from the Regional Transportation Authority.

Thompson is looking to a management audit of the Chicago Transit Authority, which gets more than 70 per cent of the RTA's money, to determine if the RTA is working properly.

He said Wednesday that if the audit shows the RTA is not working efficiently, any of the six counties in the RTA should have the option of leaving the controversial agency.

The study, however, has not yet been started and is expected to take six months. State officials said they are preparing a study proposal for fund approval and expect the project to go to bid in early August.

It then will take a month before a contract is awarded, so work is not expected to start until mid-September.

Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, said he admires the governor's statement on a difficult issue. He said it makes sense that the RTA should be changed if it doesn't work, but he said the state is a long way from knowing how well the RTA works.

Hein-Stavros tie deserves airing

The long shadow of James Stavros and the corruption of an earlier era continue to darken the political scene in Wheeling.

Since William Hein became village president in April, charges and countercharges have been made about Hein's connection with Stavros and corruption-riddled past village administrations.

Stavros, along with several village officials, was convicted in 1974 in a zoning shakedown scandal. The former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman admitted in a guilty plea that he controlled the village board. Hein was part of that village board.

Even before the election, Hein's opponents were pointing the accusing finger at Hein because of his past Wheeling affiliations. Those charges and Hein's denials could be taken as steps in a political power struggle.

Now, however, damaging evidence of a Hein-Stavros link is on the public record. It is clearly past time for Hein to detail exactly what his past involvement with Stavros was and what it is today.

In a deposition filed last week, former Wheeling Police Chief Peter Guttilla testified that he was hand-picked for that job in 1972 in a secret meeting between Stavros and Hein.

The testimony came in Guttilla's lawsuit to get his old job back. It shows that Hein helped Stavros fill at least one key village post when Stavros pulled the strings.

Hein has refused comment on the charges and has repeatedly denied any connection with the wrong-doing of the past. Yet signs keep appearing of a continued relationship between Hein and Stavros.

Stavros appeared at Hein's victory party following his slate's sweep of the April Wheeling election.

Hein's opponents on the present village board also have charged that Stavros has been seen meeting with Hein at his auto parts store. Hein denied this.

Hein has repeatedly asked that Wheeling put the Stavros era behind it. It's not good, he argues, to continually be reminded of the troubles which have since been corrected.

But as long as evidence of a Stavros-Hein connection crop up, Wheeling's era of corruption cannot be laid to rest.

The burden of proof is on Hein to convince Wheeling residents that he is not going to let Stavros resume his past position of unofficial power broker. Until he does that, the past will remain alive.

Vietnam era's final end

Vietnam has been admitted to the United Nations.

An era has ended.

The U.N. Security Council this week accepted Vietnam's application for membership by consensus. In the past, the U.S. has used its security council veto to keep our former enemy out of the international organization.

There will be those who find Vietnam's admission to the U.N. objectionable. They will argue — as many have for years about other Communist nations — that Vietnam is not "peace loving" and that it should not be allowed in an international body promoting peace. But then, that objection covers a lot of other members of the U.N.

In addition, those who believe — however implausibly — that American prisoners of war remain alive in Vietnam, will find this latest action one more blow to their hopes.

However, the fact remains that the Vietnam War is over, Vietnam is now a united country and there is no reason to keep that nation out of the United Nations.

By stepping aside and allowing the inevitable, the United States doesn't condone the Hanoi regime's policies on human rights or anything else.

All our action has done is acknowledge the realities of the world situation.

Richard W. Sears founded a vast mail-order empire

Jim Bishop

A dozen gold-plated, 7-jewel watches arrived at North Redwood, Minnesota, in 1886. A jeweler refused them. A railroader, 23, a telegrapher with a handsome mustache, bought them at $7 apiece and sold each at $9.

His name was Richard W. Sears. He was a home student, one who didn't fritter his time with girls at grange dances. He ordered more watches. He telegraphed down the line that he was making salesmen of other telegraphers. Sears was a mover.

In six months, he quit the railroad and set up a mail-order business in Minneapolis. He sold so many shiny watches that he moved to Chicago and advertised for a watch repairman. A skinny kid from Hammond, Indiana, responded. He said his name was Alvah Roebuck.

THEY WORKED together. They made money. They split. Sears was so clever that he sold everything to Roebuck. In 1893, Sears talked his pal out of a half interest and called it Sears, Roebuck & Co.

America had big ideas in 1899. It had defeated Spain, had 76 million people in 45 states and busted its britches growing. Men earned 22 cents an hour and supported families. Sears Roebuck returned to Chicago and Alvah Roebuck quit. Everyone was moving fast — especially Sears.

He decided that a mail-order catalogue would sell anything. It would, but a 200-page catalogue cost money. Richard Sears found two new partners. Aaron Nussbaum and Julius Rosenwald. They put up $150,000 and became one-third partners in the company.

In time, the Sears Roebuck catalogue covered America. On farms, last year's catalogue hung on a nail in the outhouse. Farmers and factory workers spent evenings under kerosene lamps turning the pages, finding the merchandise they would love to buy but could hardly afford.

AT THE TURN of the century, the handsome Sears placed a notice on the cover of the catalogue: "Capital and Surplus over One Million Dollars." He sold much more than cheap watches. In quantity, Sears undersold everybody.

There was no Food and Drug Administration, so he peddled nostrums which could cure everything. He had Ague Pills and Wonder Heart Cure, Tobacco Cure, Stop Drinking, Asthma, Indigestion, Obesity Powder, Female Ills, Catarrh, Dr. Barker's Blood Builder, Curtis Consumption Cure, and Beef, Iron and Wine.

He sold men's suits in 11 styles from $13.50 to $20.50. What red-blooded man could resist "Stanton's Very Finest, Extra Heavy Weight, Plain Black Double Diagonal, All-Wool English Worsted Cloth Suit" for $15?

Ladies laced high-top shoes with brocade effect: $1.95. A Vici Kid with high buttons was $2. A man could get a dozen high starched collars, with brass collar buttons, for $1. Derbies, suspenders, spats, 5-hook summer corsets, underskirts, camisoles, a fetching striped flannel nightgown were only 69 cents.

A POUND OF coffee ran from 19 cents to 21 cents. A gallon of house paint sold for 98 cents. In 1900, Sears was selling a double bed, a dressing table and a commode for $21. The orders poured in so fast that he set up Chicago warehouses on Fulton, Des Plaines and Wayman Streets.

Long freight trains pulled out of the Chicago yards, rumbling west and east, with big "Sears Roebuck" signs on the freight cars. People were buying cut glass bowls, Morris chairs, decanters for port and sherry, a hundred-piece dinner set, gold-finished, for $12.75.

Sears guaranteed almost everything. The Edgemere Sewing Machine cost $12.75 and could be used to run up hems, fashion darts, sew applique and make muslin blouses. There was no limit to what Sears Roebuck could do. A four-wheel baby carriage, with a parasol on top, cost only $3.75. Most mothers bought one and saved it for use time after time.

He sold nipples and sponges and gallbladder cures, pliers, even a Giant Power Electric Belt with "80-gauge current" (for men) afflicted with chronic weakness and nervous diseases: "It Will Penetrate Every Nerve of Your Body" ($18).

"THOUSANDS OF Beautiful Women Recommend Our White Lily Face Wash" at 40 cents per bottle. As the millions of dollars piled on scores of millions, Richard Sears kept working, buying cheaply, selling cheap. His name was as well known as that of the President of the United States.

In 1908, he quit. In his last great catalogue, he insisted that the railroad watches be featured up front. The new 17-jewel watches, "pre-adjusted" and with hunter cases, were expensive: $20.50.

It was a long way back to North Redwood, Minnesota, but he made the trip. And wondered how much he had missed . . .

Gun bureaucrats unjustly confiscate with no chance for legal registration

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

Tom Gibson is a middle-aged, middle-income small businessman from Southern California whose recent experience with the federal bureaucracy vividly demonstrates why so many citizens have come to distrust their national government.

A 52-year-old veteran of World War II, Gibson operates a shoe repair and retail shoe store in National City, Calif., just south of San Diego. "I've never been arrested and never been cited for anything more serious than a parking violation," he says.

Several years ago, Gibson was given a "hand gun," a long-barreled pistol which fires a single shotgun shell. "This gun was a keepsake, given to me by the family of a very dear friend — a man who was like a father to me," Gibson explains.

TO DETERMINE IF the weapon had to be registered, Gibson early this year telephoned the San Diego office of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), the Treasury Department agency in charge of implementing federal gun laws.

At the request of the ATF, Gibson carried the gun to the nearby field office, where an ATF agent checked registration records, "then advised me that the gun had not been registered and told me I could not have it back."

Recalling that unexpected confiscation of his property, Gibson says: "I feel very deeply that I have been wronged. I respect the government and its laws but feel that the firearms official obtained this keepsake, which I treasured, by a ruse."

Gibson ran afoul of the Gun Control Act of 1968, a meritorious statute designed to strictly control traffic in machine guns, automatic rifles, silencers, sawed-off shotguns, explosives and sundry other lethal weapons.

THE PURCHASE or possession of those items is not prohibited, except on the part of convicted criminals, but weapons manufactured after passage of the law must be serially numbered and registered as they move from the manufacturer onto the market place and eventually to purchasers.

For weapons produced prior to enactment of the law, there was a one-month "amnesty period" in late 1968 during which gun owners could register their weapons and make possession legal.

The law also authorized ATF to designate other "amnesty periods" of up to 90 days, but in the ensuing nine years there have been none and there are no plans for any in the future because of what an agency official describes only as "administrative considerations."

In other words, a law-abiding citizen who wants to keep as a memento or souvenir an unregistered, pre-1968 weapon has only two, equally unpalatable choices: Hide it and risk criminal conviction or allow ATF to confiscate it.

"FOR THE FIRST time in my life, I am asking for help," Gibson said in a letter to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. Cranston then elicited from ATF Director Rex D. Davis the admission that "there are numerous instances similar to Mr. Gibson's."

An ATF spokesman also acknowledges that "it happens quite frequently." But when asked if the agency has ever sought the slight modification in the law which would prevent future incidents, an ATF lawyer admits: "I don't believe we have addressed the problem."

The law is supposed to restrict traffic in "what we like to refer to as 'gangster-type weapons,' " says the ATF spokesman — although he promptly admits that Gibson's gun "is a collector's item more than anything else."

The helpful ATF attorney suggests that if Gibson really wants a "handy gun," he can purchase an already-registered replacement by "filling out Form 4 and taking it to a Class 3 gun dealer who has a Title I license and handles Title II weapons."

Gibson, who speaks English, says "I don't think this is fair and it should not be the way the government acts." He's right, and his experience is all too common. But in official Washington, narrow interpretations of "the law" and "the regulations" invariably supersede any notion of dealing justly, fairly and reasonably with the citizenry.

'What does union want'

The desire of some Palatine policemen to join the Teamsters Union reminds me of a comment made long ago by William Allen White, who said, "the policeman's status is not that of a laborer but a defender of peace and order."

Surely that is the way the citizens and the village board of Palatine feel about their police officers. This is not to degrade "laborers" (aren't all of us laborers of one sort or another?), but to say that we want our policemen to be a little different — a little above the rest of us who need them to protect us against the elements in our community that would tear us down. We look on our police as our first line of defense against crime — our "defenders of peace and order."

Although most of us in Palatine have no objection to the police or other public employes joining lawful employe associations (as is their right under the First Amendment), it is another thing altogether when a politically oriented organization such as the Teamsters wants to organize them. The Palatine group would soon find that is was merely an opening wedge in the labor union's drive to place all public employes — police, firemen, teachers — under their control, providing millions of dollars of newly available money to the union political lobbyists and bosses.

The Palatine policemen would do well to read the article about the Teamsters union starting on page 52 of the July 11 issue of Time magazine, which states, "Few organizations in American society are endowed with such a complement of criminals, confidence men, rogues and ruffians as the International Brotherhood of Teamsters." Then they might consider whether it's just their money that the union bosses want (and they definitely do want their money), or is there going to be more involved down the road somewhere.

Our policemen should take a second look at the Teamsters' emblem with its two horses heads facing in opposite directions; they may one day find themselves being pulled two ways — toward their duty and desire to work in their chosen profession as defenders of peace and order, and toward the labor union's bosses' desires which appear to be very different.

He defends bill

I am writing you in reply to your recent editorial concerning the bill I introduced into the Illinois legislature to give a break to the Peter Hand Brewing Company, the last remaining brewery in Chicago. I feel that your editorial only presented one side of the case and did not take into account what we are trying to accomplish.

Many businesses are given tax considerations in order to help the economic climate of the state. Peter Hand has over 100 employes with an annual payroll in excess of $1,500,000 and it makes purchases in excess of $5,000,000 from Illinois suppliers. If this brewery was to go out of business, the tax loss in income tax and sales tax would far outweigh the small tax advantage the company would receive from my bill. Therefore, your statement that we are supporting them with taxpayers' money is not true when you consider how much would be lost if they went out of business.

It is also interesting to note that seven other states through their state legislatures have given similar relief to their local breweries including three that border on our state, Iowa, Kentucky and Wisconsin.

This bill is one that is favored by both labor and management and I think it is important that you show both sides of this ussue.

'Close Wood'

After just reading that the Wood School closing was turned down by the school board of District 59 — my only comment is — don't come asking for a tax raise to this citizen!

This new board was to cut expenses and look for ways to become more financially solvent and put this district back on a livable financial budget.

Why has every other elementary school district in this area closed at least one or two schools and Dist. 59 just can't see the light. Let's not let Mr. Stamm fight this battle alone!

Do you want to close a school or two for finances sake with no hardship or pay more taxes? Be realistic! My pocketbook is not lined with gold — is yours?

Today's beliefs often get questions, less acceptance

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

Throughout history human thought has alternated between periods of general acceptance of sets of beliefs and periods of questioning the beliefs of the immediate past and groping for new or sometimes older ones.

We are certainly in the second of those phases right now. An archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church defied the Pope and the Vatican in both France and in Texas. As though that were not startling enough for one day's news we also learn that China's most loyal satellite, Albania, has proclaimed its disapproval of China's associations with the United States.

Remote as is the association of these two events they have one thing in common. Both the communist government of Albania and the traditionalist movement in the Roman Catholic Church reflect a groping back from the new "liberalism" of recent times to older values. This is the new conservatism.

ARCHBISHOP MARCEL Lefebvre prefers the rites and rituals of the Catholic Church as they were established at the Council of Trent (1545-1563). The Latin name of Trent was Tridentum, hence Tridentine Mass. The Archbishop is threatened with excommunication for insisting on the Latin ritual instead of the modern vernacular as authorized by the recent Second Council of Rome.

The Albanian communists apparently long for a return to the good old days (by their standards) when Mao Tse-tung preached an earlier and more austere form of communism from the great stage of the central square in Peking. Their loyalty to Peking has been solid and unwavering from 1961, when Moscow broke off relations with them, until this July 7 when they went public with their disapproval of current Chinese behavior.

Moscow is being defied daily by the new dissenters of the communist world. The Soviet Union itself is full of dissent. Nicolae Ceausescu, Communist Party leader and President of Romania, approves of the new Eurocommunism and reproaches Moscow for denouncing that movement which is strongest in Spain, Italy, and France. Yugoslavia, the first communist country to break out from Moscow discipline, is also loud in its approval of Eurocommunism.

THIS QUESTIONING of established patterns of thought and established disciplines is not limited to the Roman branch of the Christian Church or to the communist world. In the Anglican communion a group of theologians are proposing to discard the concept of the divinity of Christ Jesus. That would iine them up with the Unitarians, an unlikely association for trinitarian Anglicans.

In the political world Americans are beginning to notice that people who call themselves conservatives are more and more frequently finding themselves approving of things being done from the White House in Washington by Democrat Jimmy Carter. One must begin to wonder just where the line between the doctrines of the Democrats and the doctrines of the Republicans is going to be drawn when the next presidential election rolls around.

In Africa something equally new is happening. The new black African states are waking up to the fact that the old colonialisms have largely withered away and that if there is any threat to them from the outside world it comes from Moscow, not from Washington or from any of the old capitals of Western Europe. Several important black leaders in Rhodesia are again talking to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith. There just might be a nonviolent and non-Marxist transition there away from white supremacy to a pluralistic political system. At least some new channels of thought seem to be opening up.

IN ALL THIS change of values one of the more interesting is the turn back from authoritarianism in India to democracy. The same just might be happening in Pakistan, although the instrument at the moment is a milirary coup d'etat. Also the chances seem likely that Sri Lanka (Ceylon) will be swinging back toward democracy when the votes are counted after the elections there on July 21.

Democracy seems to have regained respectability — and desirability. Communism, once supposed to be the new concept for the new generation, has been losing respectability, and attractiveness. Its image has been tarnished by the repressiveness of the system in the Soviet Union and in the states adjacent to it in Eastern Europe.

How much if any of this is due to Carter's so-called "human rights" crusade? Not much. The groping for new ideas, or back to older values, predated the Carter presidency. To some extent the Carter presidency itself is a symptom of the process of reaching out for fresh ideas and for new, or old, values. Carter did not cause the movement, but he seems to be moving in harmony with it, even to be riding it. What is more refreshing than a President in Washington wanting a balanced budget and stating that the equalizing of the human condition is not a proper function of the federal government?

And equally refreshing is a President who does not really care what the Kremlin thinks about what he is doing.

U.S. people satisfied with Carter's 'goodness'

by GODFREY SPERLING JR.

The questioner at a recent press conference who brought up the subject of the President's opportunity to underscore a position that has won him millions of supporters, among Republicans as well as Democrats.

Many people like it when the President says, as he did in his press conference reply, that he is monogamous, believes in monogamy, and encourages those who work in his administration to get married. He said he has done "everything I could — well, properly and legitimately — to encourage my staff members' families to be stable, and I have encouraged the same sort of things in my Cabinet."

Many people like it, too, when the President adds, "My preference is that those who associate with me — in fact, all people — would honor the same standards that I honor."

Recent checks with political leaders around the United States show that Carter's strongest appeal, particularly among those who would normally not be his supporters, is his stand for what is commonly called "private morality," a stable family life based on marriage.

BUT THOSE WHO applaud the President's avowal of private morality — or, at least, many of them — are also delighted with his soft answer to a reporter's charge that he had failed to "hold it against" subordinates who did not come up to his standards. "If there are some who slip from grace," Carter said with a smile, "then I can only say that I'll do the best I can to forgive them and pray for them."

On a recent trip through the Midwest I found that it is indeed people's perception of "the goodness" of Jimmy Carter that holds him in high favor. And while the appeal of "goodness" does not have to be explained, it has a very special attraction these days.

No one has to be told that Richard Nixon now is viewed as a man of weak character by a sizable segment of the population. Also, one finds that former Presidents Johnson and Kennedy are seen by many Americans as something less than "nice" men — Johnson because of his escalation of the Vietnam war and Kennedy because of what many believe to have been extra-marital activity.

It's 104 in NYC, teeming masses become steaming

by United Press International

Temperatures vaulted over the 100-degree mark in New York City, New Jersey and New England Thursday and "beat the heat" was the unhappy, monotonous watchword for millions of persons in the East, South and lower Midwest.

Residents of the Northern Plaines, upper Midwest and Great Lakes region emerged from a midsummer sauna of 1977 and reveled in temperatures in the delightful 70s or respectable 80s.

The mercury soared to 104 degrees in New York City, equalling the record for the second hottest day in the city's history. The hottest was 106 on July 9, 1936.

NEW YORK'S teeming millions took to the beaches and cool movie theaters and made runs on department store supplies of fans and air conditioners.

It was the sweltering city's ninth straight day over 90 and the second time in three days the temperature exceeded 100. The heat wave there is the longest in 11 years.

In New England, Bostonians suffered in a mid-afternoon temperature of 101 and Concord, N.H., had a sizzling 100 — both records for the date. It was a record 102 in early afternoon at Newark, N.J.

Forest rangers in the six-state New England region expressed fear over the dryness of forest lands and farmers in western Massachusetts said dairy cows were producing from 10 to 25 per cent less milk — in part because they are standing around in streams and ponds instead of grazing.

LUCKILY, perhaps, there was less demand for milk.

"Ice cream and those products go like holy smokes," manager Glenn Briggs of a West Springfield, Mass., dairy cooperative said. "But milk? Let's face it, people are drinking beer and soda."

A mass of comparatively cool air ended the prolonged searing heat wave in most of the midlands. With it in southern Wisconsin and northern Iowa came drenching rains — up to five inches. They raised flash flood warnings but in some degree alleviated a drought that was becoming critical.

"The garage door was up. That's probably what saved us."

The wind came rushing in the open door, she said, and then funneled upward, taking the roof but leaving most of the house.

"I really think it would have blown the kitchen and part of the house over had the wind hit the resistance of the garage door," she said.

As it was, the garage and part of the house roof were lifted totally off the structure and blown into the side of a nearby house.

JANICE KACMARCIK was putting some stew on the stove while her 6-year-old daughter played at the kitchen table.

"All of a sudden it sounded like a semi was coming through the side of the house. The drapes were drawn so I couldn't see anything. But I could hear the rumbling and suddenly I felt something crashing into the house.

"When I heard the crash knew it was a tornado so I grabbed my daughter and ran to open the front door to let the air pass through. But the door was closed by the suction in the house. So we went to the crawl space. By the time we got there, everything was calm. We went outside and ran across the street."

Before Mrs. Kacmarcik knew what was happening, neighbors and nearby construction workers began pulling the first roof off the side of her house and using what wood they could fine to board up another neighbor's house which had the roof torn off completely. But the workers couldn't do it fast enough, and the pouring rain that followed the tornado filled the ranch home.

NOW THERE are boarded up windows, doors off the track and a score of insurance adjusters and contractors surveying the damage done by the tornado as it skipped across on a direct west-east path.

Thursday the residents accepted the destruction with a calmness that belied the fear of the day before and the misgivings about the future.

"I'm a little worried how the three boys will react," Mrs. Kukowski said "I'm afraid any little rain and they'll want to go downstairs. In fact, I'll probably want to go downstairs."

Mrs. Kacmarcik has similar worries. When the roof slammed into the side of her split-level home, it destroyed only one room — her daughter's playroom.

There the plaster shattered, and windows blew out, embedding glass in stuffed giraffes and bears. Game pieces stuck out of the walls.

WHEN THE STORM was over, her daughter wanted to come back and see her room.

"But I wouldn't let her. I think she would be afraid to be in that room again, if she could see it now."

Communists disrupt TV news to back Concorde

PARIS (UPI) — About 50 Communist militants invaded a television studio Thursday and disrupted French television's evening news program with a demand that the newscaster read their manifesto favoring New York landing rights for the Concorde jetliner.

Viewers saw a few minutes of scuffling, then the news went off the air, replaced by a film of landscapes with soft music playing in the background.

When the news program resumed some 25 minutes later, the chief newscaster, Roger Gicquel announced: "About 50 people invaded the studio. They tried to demonstrate in favor of landing rights for Concorde in New York.

"THEY WERE responsible militants of the Communist party from the Aerospatiale (the French company that manufactures the supersonic jet in partnership with Britain)," Gicquel said. "They wanted me to read on the air a communique entitled, 'No to the American refusal.'

"I personally refused to read this communique under this intolerable pressure," Gicquel said. "The entire team of the television newscast protests against this breach of the freedom of information."

After Gicquel's statement, the newscast resumed normally with no fruther mention of the incident.

A TELEVISION journalist who was in the studio at the time of the invasion said the militants, "Communists, mostly men of about 30, forced their way past the regular security guard just as the program was starting."

The demonstrators carried signs that read "Concorde to New York" and "U.S. Refusal: No.," the journalist said.

After talking with the producer and Gicquel about the reading of their manifesto for close to half an hour, the demonstrators, still carrying their signs, left the studio peacefully.

"There was no violence whatsoever, we just refused, they cursed at that but they seemed to understand and left," the journalist said.

The militants disbanded rapidly as they reached the street.

Officials said an investigation has been opened on the incident, but would not say if and what kind of charges would be pressed against them.

THE COMMUNIQUE the militants wanted to have read during the newscast said:

"The landing of Coccorde in New York is not an affair of noise or pollution since the nuisances are equivalent to those of American Boeings.

"The Communists today demand the American challenge be taken up, for what is good for American monopolies is not good for France."

Communist party spokesman Claude Poperen said of the incident, "The right for Concorde to land in New York is a national matter."

Work by North American Indian is considered valuable primitive art

by GENIE CAMPBELL

A major exhibition that opened last week at the Art Institute of Chicago destroys certain misconceptions about native Indian art and establishes it as valuable, aesthetically pleasing primitive art.

Indian art is not Navajo rugs and turquoise jewelry. That is slick commercialism — mass-produced at that.

The objects on exhibit, many of them thousands of years old, vary from the functional — pipes, knives, baskets and bows — to ornamental robes, masks and wood sculptures.

SPIRITUALISM and religious beliefs dictated much of the art forms created and while it is difficult to comprehend centuries-old art, since we usually speak in terms of U.S. birthdays, this exhibit is even more effective because some of the work is still being done today.

"The Native American Heritage: A Survey of North American Indian Art" is made up of more than 550 objects that date from about 2,500 B.C. to the present. Approximately 100 prehistoric cultures and historic tribes are represented in the show on view in the Morton Wing through Oct. 30.

Because so little attention has been directed toward such encompassing exhibits of native Indian art, a staff under the direction of Evan Mauerer, curator of the Institute's Primitive Art Department, spent three years researching and putting this exhibit together. It will be viewed only at the Art Institute.

More than 185 public and private collections were surveyed in order to amass the most complete show. A small percentage of objects located for the exhibit could not be brought here because they were too fragile.

STILL, THE ITEMS on exhibit are not only extremely varied, but provide a nice cross section of the various geographical areas inhabited by the various tribes. Many pieces have never been previously displayed.

Because the exhibit is divided into seven geographical areas determined by similarities of environment and culture, one can distinguish both the styles and marks exclusive to certain tribes and those that overlap. The latter is most evident in pieces made after the Indians began trading among themselves and with the white man, whose influence is also noted.

Included among the 47 works from the Southwest are some of the finest animal-style stone sculptures known. The Woodlands (Great Lakes and Northeast) were noted for wood sculpture and intricate porcupine quill and bead work.

The art of the Plains Indian is highly symbolic, intended for public show. The number of lodge poles or the cut of a tepee could reveal the tribe who made them. The same principles applied to costuming and personal adornment. Elaborate beadwork was employed.

SOUTHWEST IS represented by a great amount of basketry and pottery; a wide selection of masks are among the objects from the Northwest Coast; and carved wood, bone and ivory items characterize the work in the Far North (Alaska to Greenland) by the native Eskimos.

One of the oldest examples in the exhibition is a ceremonial flint blade (circa 2,000 B.C.) found in a cache under a road to the airport in Springfield, Il. The two most recent pieces were made especially for the exhibition by Chippewa artists from Minnesota. One is "Red Totem I," a tall wood construction by George Morrison.

"Native American Heritage: A Survey of North American Indian Art" is not to be brushed over lightly. It is a vast undertaking and one that takes time to digest. However, a greater appreciation of Indian art and what it encompasses can be gained by just viewing the objects. Of course, it won't ease the pain of being turned away from King Tut. But like that celebrated exhibit, this is also one-of-a-kind.

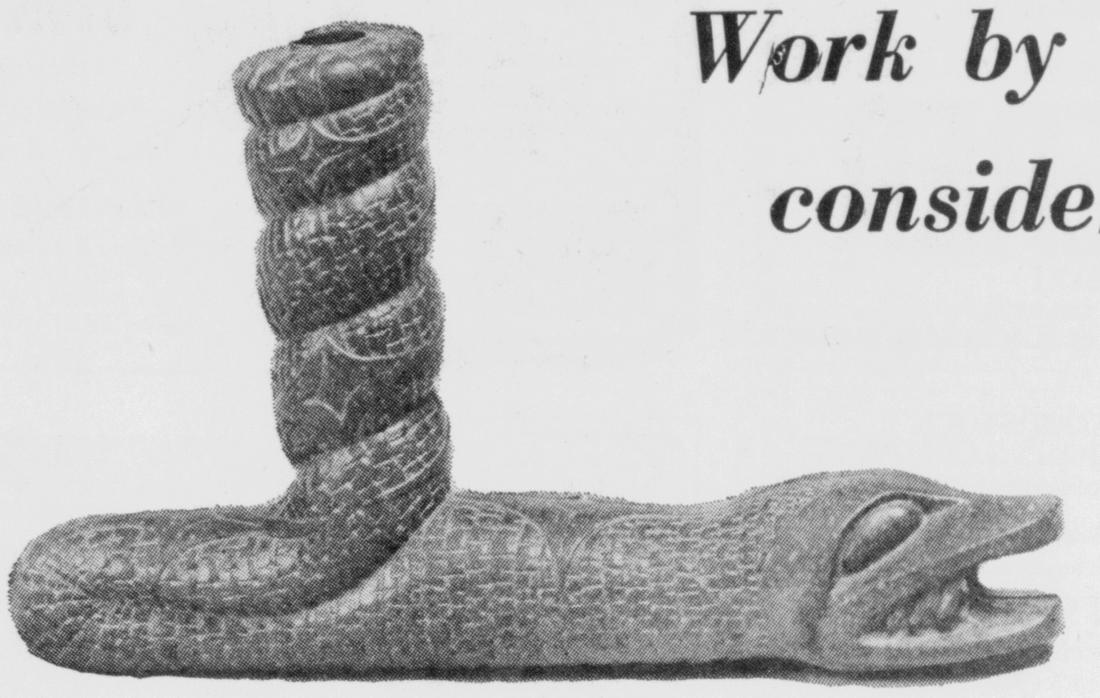
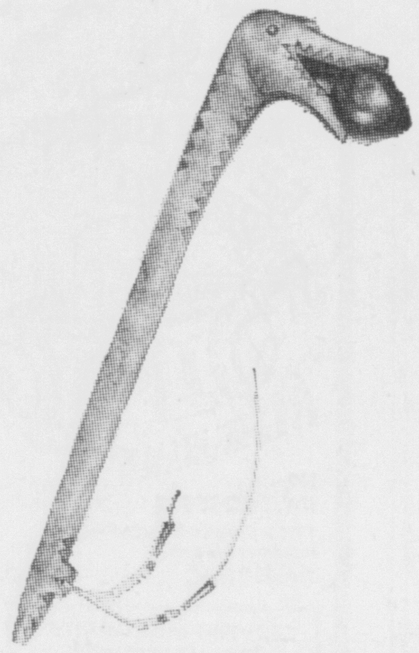
Two film programs to complement the exhibition are being shown in Price Auditorium of the Junior Museum of the Art Institute Mondays through Fridays, 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Admission is free.



The traditional straight pipe at left (Sioux, 1890) has been converted into a rattlesnake, who faces the smoker with its fangs bared, ready to fight.



Decorated pottery figurines like the one above (Yuma, 1870) were made by many of the Rancheria tribes. The club at center (Chippewa, 1890) was made and used by a medicine man in Lac du Flambeau, Wis. He died in 1920.

The clay water jar above (Tesuque Pueblo, 1870) is superbly painted in the Tesuque style. Floral appliqued beadwork is set off against a dark background in the man's wool shirt (Winnebago, 1880).

Rocky begins to doubt he can beat the champ

by JULIA SOREL

Strewn on the kitchen table in Rocky's apartment were a few of his scrapbooks containing items from Newsweek — headline: "The Italian Stallion or Donkey?" — Sports Illustrated, The American Sportsman, Ring Magazine, World Boxing, True, Philadelphia Magazine showing Rocky standing, shaking hands with the mayor, and a multitude of other clippings.

Adrian shook her head admiringly as she looked through one of the scrapbooks."Rocky, do you realize everybody in this country knows your face, and after the fight everybody in the world is going to?"

"Yeah," Rocky responded. He wasn't sure he wanted everyone in the world to know his face; that would get to be a hassle. He'd have to hire bodyguards to keep the crowds away just as if he were Jackie Onassis, or Richard Burton. He wouldn't be able to take an ordinary walk, or eat a hoagie without being stared at.

"IS EVERYTHING all right?" Adrian asked solicitously. "I gotta go out for a while," was all the answer she got.

Rocky is a moving, uplifting story of hope. This is the fifth of a six-part story by Julia Sorel, based on the screenplay by Sylvster Stallone.

Later, rocky arrived at Goldmill's Gym. He had the key to the door. Everyone else had gone home. Rocky moved across the gym through eerie shadows, the dog trotting by his side. He moved up the steps to Mickey's office. At the top of the stairs he looked down at the ring, reflected for a moment, then entered the office. After turning on the lights, he quickly cleaned the cluttered desk and set up the projector. He went to the cabinet and removed a stack of 16 mm films.

Several hours later, Rocky was deeply engrossed in watching another Apollo Creed film. Rocky hardly noticed time passing; he was searching for something in Creed's style, his Achilles heel, so to speak. Suddenly, as Apollo was delivering a knockout blow to an unfortunate opponent, Rocky stopped the projector. Rocky moved rught up to freeze frame and inspected it like it was a priceless painting. Then he backed off and began writing on a note pad.

THE FIRST LIGHT of dawn streamed through Mickey's filthy windows. Rocky had had all he could take; he was slumped in the chair and had lost all interest in observing Apollo Creed on film. The film had just completed its run through the projector and lazily flopped around the top reel. Listlessly, Rocky rubbed his reddened eyes.

Mickey opened the door and found him there. The two men stared at each other for a long moment. Mickey studied Rocky's despondent expression and knew what was on the fighter's mind.

"I know what you're thinkin', kid. At least ya got a shot. All ya can do is try ya' best."

Rocky stood up but didn't say a word; he was dead tired and discouraged. He was beginning to realize that he would have to actually appear in the ring with the champ, and thereby become over 200 pounds of mincemeat!

HE WONDERED whether it was so important to get your shot. Maybe it was better to imagine how it would have been. Rocky inched past Mickey and left the room with Butkus. Mickey walked over to the projector. He idly pushed the machine with a lazy motion until it slid off the desk and crashed to the floor.

After leaving Mickey's gym, Rocky moved down the street listlessly and headed for home. It was daylight when he arrived. Adrian was asleep on the couch. He lowered himself beside her.

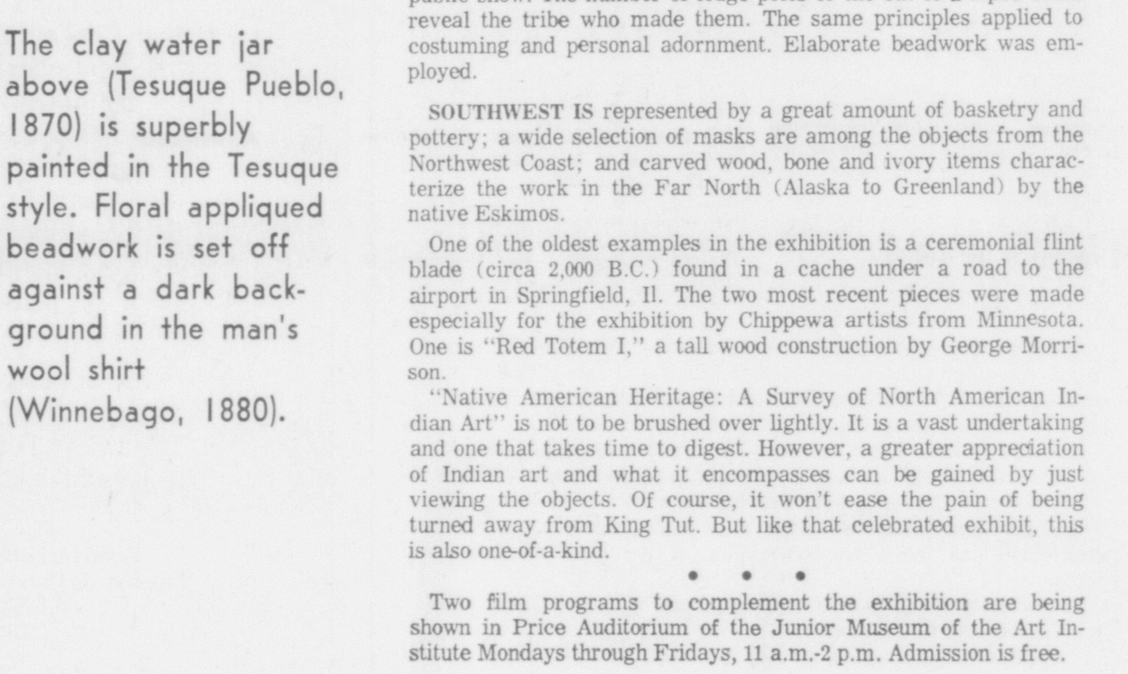
Her eyes opened.

"Can't do it," Rocky said.

"What?" Adrian asked.

"I can't beat him."

"Apollo?" She took his cold hand and warmed it between her palms. Rocky moved close to her. He needed comfort.



CHAPION APOLLO CREED, right, didn't expect much of a challenge from amateur fighter Rocky. But Apollo soon discovered he had underestimated the courage of the underdog. Rocky charged, and a terrific right crashed against Apollo's chin.

"Yeah, I can't beat him," Rocky said sadly.

ADRIAN TOUCHED his face. She loved every line, every pore. If she could have, she would have given him super strength to beat Apollo Creed. Her touch made him less anxious. He opened up a bit.

"I been watchin' the movies . . . studyin'. He ain't weak nowhere," he said with emphasis.

"What're we going' to do?" Adrian asked, as if she were going to be in the ring with him, fighting alongside him, taking and giving punishment. In a way she would be there, the invisible helpmate, the spirit of true love. "Oh Rocky, you worked so hard."

"It ain't so bad, 'cause I was nothin' before."

"Don't say that."

"C'MON, IT'S TRUE. But that don't bother me — I just wanna prove somethin'. I ain't no bum. It don't mater if I lose, don't matter if he opens my head. The only thing I wanna do is go the distance, that's all. Nobody's ever gone 15 rounds with Creed. If I go them 15 rounds an' that bell rings an' I'm still standing' I'm gonna know then I weren't just another bum from the neighborhood."

He gently lowered himself beside Adrian.

It was the horrible or wonderful night, whichever way you want to

Players to audition

Open auditions for the remaining productions in the Theatre '77 Series by The Players of Schaumburg Repertory Company will be held Thursday, 7:30 to 10:30 p.m., in Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Lane.

The first production, with rehearsals starting Sept. 1 for an Oct. 7 opening, is "The Prisoner of Second Avenue." There are roles for two men and four women ages 35 and over.

The second production, to be presented in December, is "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown." Rehearsals begin in late September, calling for three males and five females ages 18 to 25. Singing and dancing are required.

In addition to the play auditions, resident director Sonja Leraas, Schaumburg, will interview persons interested in joining the group in salaried positions of resident pianist and associate director. Appointments may be made for July 28 and July 31 by calling 885-2360 after 4 p.m.

New company stages 'Godspell'

Tranquality Productions, the area's newest theater company, is presenting "Godspell" weekends through July at Our Savior Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. A cast of 10, all living in the Northwest suburbs, are staging the show at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and at 2 p.m. Sundays.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and students. Group rates are available. Reservations, 364-0944.

God's People in concert

God's People, a group of performers at the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, will give a concert Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the church. The musical selections will be a preview from programs the group will be giving on a European tour early in August.

'Important of Being Earnest'

Fortune Theatre is presenting Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings through July 30. The theater is located at 1492 Henry St., Des Plaines.

Tickets, 827-6932 or 627-2213. Group rates are available.

Friday band concerts

Free summertime concerts by Palatine Concert Band are being performed Friday evenings from 8 to 9 o'clock in Palatine Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Rd., through Aug. 12.

Stan Louiseau is director. Information, 392-0027 evenings.

Tonight's concerts are devoted to works by Bela Bartok, a featured composer this season. Robert Mann and son Nicholas are guest artists for the Violin Duos and the Sonata for Solo Violin in the Preview IV concert, 7 p.m., in the Murray Theatre.

At 8:30 Robert Mann and Andre-Michel Schub, pianist, are soloists in a program that includes the Violin Concerto No. 2, Piano Concerto No. 3, and the Concert Suite from "The Miraculous Mandarin" ballet. James Levine will conduct the concert, which commemorates the 100th anniversary of the birth of Rudolph Ganz.

Second City gives a repeat performance of Revue II at 11:30 p.m. in the Murray Theatre.

The Mozart Marathon, a Ravinia specialty, is scheduled for Saturday, 7:30 p.m. in the pavilion. Soloists are Emanuel Ax, Seth McCoy, Donald Gramm, Maria Ewing, Edward Gordon and Kathleen Battle. James Levine will conduct.

AT MIDNIGHT the music-making moves to the Murray Theatre with a chamber program made up of the Sonata in D Major for Two Pianos, K. 448, with Paul Schenly and Andre-Michel Schum as soloists. James Levine will play the piano for Piano Quartet in G minor, K. 478.

Haydn, the other featured composer this season, takes center stage Sunday when his oratorio "The Creation" is performed in its entirety. James Levine will conduct the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus.

Chicago-area premieres of six dances are scheduled during the Twyla Tharp Dance Foundation's appearances at the Ravinia Festival Sunday and Monday.

The company makes its Chicago-area debut at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, presenting "Mud" to music by Mozart, "The Fugue" performed in silence on a miked stage, and "Eight Jelly Rolls" to music by Jelly Roll Morton.

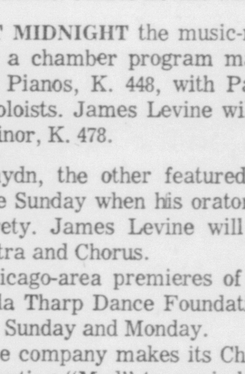
MONDAY'S PROGRAM includes "Country Dance" to traditional American country music; "Cacklin' Hen" to traditional country music recorded by "Snuffy" Jenkins, "Pappy" Sherrill and the Hired Hands; "The Simon Medley" to music by Paul Simon; and "Sue's Leg" to music arranged and recorded by Fats Waller.

Both performances, which are funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Illinois Arts Council, will be given in the Murray Theatre.

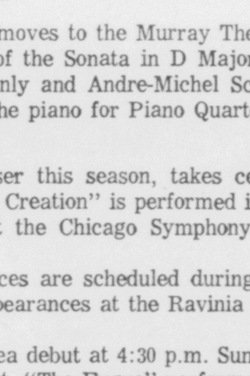
All choreography is by company founder and artistic director Twyla Tharp.

Metropolitan Opera star Donald Gramm sings his first Ravinia recital at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, in the Murray Theatre. His program will encompass three centuries of literature, including pieces by Handel, Mozart, Berlioz, Schubert, Tshaikovsky, Richard Strauss, John Duke and Charles Ives. Pianist will be Donald Hassard.

Sarah Vaughan comes to Ravinia at 8 p.m. Wednesday.



Sarah Vaughan



James Conlon

CONDUCTOR James Conlon makes his Ravinia debut at 8:30 p.m. Thursday. He will lead a Concerto Celebration featuring violinist Itzhak Perlman and cellist Lynn Harrell in a program that includes Haydn's Cello Concerto in D Major, Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E Minor and the Brahms Concerto in A Minor for Violin and Cello.

British vocalist Leo Sayer appears at 8 p.m. next Friday. Opening attraction for the concert is Melissa Manchester.

'Orca' the killer whale

Forget the logic; enjoy the movie

Review ★★★

What is even more ferocious than a great white shark? A killer whale. And Dino De Laurentiis wants to set the record straight. Early into his new film, "Orca," a killer whale (its proper name is orcinus orca) saves a diver's life by coming up from behind and crushing an attacking shark to death by the mere force of his six-ton weight. Much is also said about his double row of 48 razor sharp teeth.

I groaned. Filmgoers, I suspected, would call open season on beached whales as they did on all sharks when "Jaws" mania hit the fan.

BUT THE DIVER quickly scrambled to safety, which is very significant. The killer whale, we're told, is a friendly mammal — unless you cross him. And that's what I liked about "Orca."

Nickfin — so named in the production notes because he got nicked in the fin — was a nice guy until man meddled in his family affairs and killed his lifetime mate. Or, to stretch this theme a bit, with which De Laurentiis does take liberties, man selfishly upsets the balance of nature to feed his own greed.

I'm not sure that Nickfin looked his enemies in the eye as the film shows, that he was capable of practically destroying an entire village from his position in the water, or that he mapped out his strategy.

But "Orca" is an entertaining film, beautifully photographed and shot around the coast of Newfoundland, with tasteful editing. People get eaten up just like in "Jaws," but your imagination is put to the task with visual footage minimal.

I EVEN LOOKED up killer whale in the encyclopedia, which I never would have thought of doing without having seen the film. So I learned something.

Capt. Nolan (Richard Harris), a devil-may-care fisherman always looking for a way to get rich quick, tries to capture a killer whale alive after learning about them and their value from oceanologist Rachel Bedford (Charlotte Rampling). She warns him not to tangle with the mammoth mammal.

Nolan goes ahead and very predictably bungles the job. He seriously wounds a female whale who, when brought on board, aborts a fetus. The cries of the mate circling in the water are quite sufficient to gain the sympathy of the audience. This scene was a bit much — particularly since the whale fetus looks human.

LATER WHEN Nickfin begins ramming the boat, Nolan released his mate, but it is too late. She is dying. In a scene that resembles a funeral procession, Nickfin nudges his mate's body along until she washes up on shore.

Nolan is shaken by the experience but doesn't let it show. Rachel tells him he hasn't seen the end of Nickfin, that killer whales have the most primitive and ugly emotion of man — vengeance. Furthermore, it's creatures likes Nolan that science should be observing.

Nickfin begins eating members of Nolan's crew, one by one, sinking boats and generally terrorizing the townspeople until Nolan agrees to meet him on his own terms — in the ocean.

Harris' role won't win him awards. Still, he handles the part well, even carries off some of the stilted dialog, particularly when he admits he understands the whale's position because of a similar experience. His pregnant wife and unborn child were killed by a drunken driver.

AND RAMPLING looks the part — striking but extremely aloof and cynical. She disapproves of Nolan but also is attracted to him. Who knows why. At least De Laurentiis doesn't muddle up the story with a blatant love relationship.

Also featured are Bo Derek, Keenan Wynn and Robert Carradine. Will Sampson from "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" plays a wise, old Indian who now and then says a few wise things. Unfortunately he belongs in a different movie.

And I'm not sure why Nolan and his crew continued to follow the whale out into the Arctic seas when they all knew diesel fuel was running low. Yet, when a film is entertaining and beautiful to watch, with an easy plot to follow, you have to tell yourself not to question the logic.

Apparently De Laurentiis likes to pit man against nature. And, for sure, "Orca" (rated PG) has a happier ending — depending on whose side you're on — than his last big commercial venture, "King Kong." But then Nickfin was not quite the troublemaker King Kong was, nor the romantic lover.

FISHERMAN RICHARD HARRIS and marine biologist Charlotte Rampling inspect a beached whale killed earlier by Harris in "Orca."

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments. Films reviewed by Genie Campbell are rated excellent, four stars; god, three stars; fair, two stars; and poor, one star.

"Sinbad and the Eye of the Tiger" — That stalwart adventurer out of the Arabian Nights seeks the hand of a princess but battles supernatural creatures, prehistoric beasts and a sorceress before he claims it. The special effects are the thing, but the old-fashioned broad performing and storytelling add to the enjoyment. (G).

"New York, New York" — He is a selfish saxophone player, she is a bright young singer in the big band era immediately following World War II. It is an ill-fated love story but director Martin Scorcese rarely allows the jazz-driven pace to falter. Great performances by Robert De Niro and Liza Minnelli among cardboard sets and golden glows that evoke the fashions and mood of the 1940s. ★★★

"Rollercoaster" — A good cast coasts through the unconvincing but mildly diverting thriller about a maniac extorting money by putting bombs on amusement park rides. (PG).

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas (American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling flimmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG). ★★★★

"Sorcerer" — Big, colorful, but impersonal suspense thriller about four outcasts trucking nitroglycerine through a South American jungle. Roy Scheider gives a strong performance, the visual effects are vividly convincing, and the tension groans to hair-raising proportions. But director William Friedkin forgets to clearly unravel the story as he manipulates your pulse. (PG). ★★★

"The Other Side of Midnight" — Two women on different continents fall in love with the same man in a story of international romance and intrigue based on Sidney Sheldon's best selling novel. Features Susan Sarandon, John Beck and Marie-France Pisier. (R). ★★½

"Orca" — A Dino De Laurentis billed thriller in which a veteran fisherman battles with a giant killer whale. Sound familiar? Stars Richard Harris and Charlotte Rampling. (PG).

"The Rescuers" — Feature-length Walt Disney cartoon about two mice on a cross-country rescue mission. Voices of Bob Newhart, Eva Gabor and Geraldine Page. (G).

God's People will sing through Europe

Teens, grandparents, homemakers, teachers and businessmen, all members of a musical group from the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, will soon be packing their bags and boarding a plane for a concert tour of Europe.

Known as God's People, the chorus will leave Aug. 1 for a two-week visit to five countries, performing at a home for the aged in Amsterdam, a Baptist church in Stuttgart, a Catholic church in Innsbruck, the American church in Paris and at a resort near Zurich.

Selections on the tour will range from sacred to secular, from Bach to contemporary, with a medley of American banjo music as a highlight.

WHEN THEY ARE not singing, members will take a Rhine River cruise and a cable ride in the Alps, visit the palace at Versailles and four famous cathedrals and museums.

God's People is led by Gordon Palmer, director of music at the First Presbyterian Church. Arrangements for the tour are being made by Seminars International, Chicago.

Area residents who would like a preview of the Euuopean concerts may attend a representative program Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the Arlington church.

STEAK and ALE RESTAURANTS

Acclaimed restaurant disappoints

The Farmer's Daughter in southwest suburban Orland Park is one of the most widely acclaimed restaurants in the nation, if you are impressed by awards: World Holiday Magazine Award, 1971-1977; First Prize Trophy, National Restaurant Association, 1973; Restaurant of the Month, House and Garden Magazine, August 1970; and First Prize Trophy, Culinary Chef's Association, 1973, to list several.

So, is this award-winning restaurant worth the 50-minute drive from the Northwest suburbs to the Southwest suburbs? Yes, but only if:

(a) You have exhausted your list of fine dining establishments close to home and are looking for something new and different.

(b) You happen to be passing through the Southwest suburbs anyway.

(c) You like to drive on tollways.

The Farmer's Daughter is somewhat disappointing. Granted, the food is excellent but the service is mediocre and the decor is not overly impressive.

THE MENU IS a la carte with appetizers averaging $3.50 and entrees ranging from $5.95 (Beef Steak ala Viennoise) to $9.95 (filet mignon, prime rib, Tournedos Dijon, London broil and red snapper). Desserts are $1, served from a dessert cart featuring some unusual creations such as County Cork Irish whiskey pie, green apple pie, and Spanish brandy cheesecake.

The restaurant has some nice amenities. While waiting for your table, you are seated in a lounge downstairs where you can sip an alcoholic beverage while you take in the rustic, barnyard decor.

Upstairs each table has a copper pot containing foot-long breadsticks. The soup, which comes with every entree, is served from a copper tureen which is left at your table so you can help yourself to seconds. (And you will, too, the soup is great!) Instead of rolls you are served a basket of muffins — blueberry, banana nut, date nut and potato — to compete for your attention.

THERE'S ALSO a selection of salad dressings including the Farmer's Daughter's own sweet/sour tarragon dressing. The wine list is another interesting feature. Instead of a simple list of vintages and prices, the labels from the bottles are bound together in a book for your perusal.

The decor is described by the management as country elegance. The smaller of the two dining rooms, the Maison Madrid, has furnishings imported from Spain.

The only problem with the Farmer's Daughter is its being overrated, a malady common to fine restaurants that have received numerous commercial awards and acclaim. Having heard so much about these restaurants, you expect them to be spectacular and you may be disappointed if they do not live up to your expectation. The Farmer's Daughter is good, but by no means spectacular.

THE RESTAURANT is at 14455 S. LaGrange Rd. (Rte. 45) in Orland Park. Take the Tri-State Tollway south past the Stevenson Expressway (I-55) to Archer Avenue, then south about eight miles on Rte. 45.

Reservations are a necessity and men must wear a coat. The dress code is strictly enforced.

Rocky hesitates

look at it, of the Bicentennial fight, and the Philadelphia Spectrum was filled to capacity. At ringside, the celebrities and wealthy fight fans discussed the pros and cons of the championship match — how many rounds it might go, whether Rocky would be kayoed before he had danced a complete waltz around the ring, what Apollo Creed would do or say to antagonize his opponent. Very few had pity for Rocky; they figured the money would make up for the injury.

IN ROCKY'S tomblike dressing room, Al had wrapped his arms around Rocky's waist and was lifting his diaphram up. It seemed to Rocky that his breath was actually roaring. He could hear it rushing through his ears, the blood pounding. "S'cuse me," he said to Al and made for the toilet. Once there, he got down on his knees and prayed.

"Dear God," he began, whispering. "I'm sorry to be asking ya a favor in this here toilet, but it's private, an' I know ya'll unnerstand. See, God, I don't wanna get kilt, an' I don't wanna embarrass my girl an' my friends. So please, I'll never ask ya for another thing if ya'll let me go the distance. I know I ain't a winner, that ain't in the cards — but I'm gonna try. Amen. Thank you, God."

"It's time, kid," Mickey said.

Rocky nodded and moved toward Adrian.

"I'll wait for you here," Adrian said and kissed him. Rocky left with his trainers. There are a few times that a man must be left along, without loved ones, or anyone — when he faces death . . . and when he has to fight the odds, mano a mano.

The timekeeper rang the bell, and the announcer began announcing the fight itself: "Now for the evening's main event. In the corner to my right, the challenger, wearing white trunks, at 191 pounds, one of Philly's own sons — 'The Italian Stallion,' Rocky Balboa."

The crowd responded with good cheer and few boos.

Then turning to Creed, the announcer continued: "In the far corner, wearing red, white an' blue, weighing in at 210 pounds, undefeated in 46 fights, the heavyweight champion of the world — 'The Master of Disaster,' Apollo Creed!"

THE ARENA exploded! And Creed put on a display of hand speed: flicking and darting at the air with poisonous snap.

The fighters returned to their corners.

"God bless ya, Rock," Mickey said.

"Thank ya, Mick. I'm gonna try," Rocky said.

The bell rang. Creed danced forward and boxed Rocky as though he considered him an amateur.

Commentator Michaels: "The champion is smiling and toying with the man . . . trying to give the fans their money's worth and make a show of it with the badly outclassed challenger . . . Creed is down!"

The arena went wild.

CREED'S EYES showed disbelief . . . and so did Rocky's. He backed into his corner. Mickey and Mike yelled at him: "You can do it! Goddammit, you got the power! The body, get the body!!! Ya got him goin'!"

The referee was counting: "Six . . . Seven! . . . Eight! . . ."

Creed was up, his playful attitude gone. He was all business now. His lightning jab stung Rocky's face repeatedly. "Come at me sucker!" Apollo taunted.

Rocky charged, and a terrific right crashed against Apollo's chin, followed by an uppercut to the liver that caused Creed to cringe. Apollo countered with jobs, and Rocky whipped brutal combinations to the body.

The bell came to the rescue.

In his corner, Rocky asked Mickey, "How'm I doing'?"

"Real good," Mickey answered.

"SEE HOW FAST he is . . . damn!" Rocky was breathing hard, rinsing his mouth with water, letting his arms hang relaxed at his sides.

"Breathe deep. Keep ya chin down! Use the legs and drive through 'im. Attack . . . Attack . . . Attack!" Mickey advised.

Apollo Creed didn't even sit down in his corner. He stood there facing the crowd, clowning around to prove that he wasn't hurt, but to his trainer, he whispered, "That boy damn near broke my arm."

"Don't play with this man," the trainer cautioned. "He's fightin' hard. Let 'em feel some real heat."

Saturday: The Outcome

Fall art show seeking artists

Artists are invited to exhibit in the Des Plaines Art Guild's 22nd fall art fair, to be held Sept. 4 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The outdoor event will fill Ellinwood Avenue between Lee and Graceland and the Des Plaines National Bank parking lot in downtown Des Plaines.

Entry fee for non-members of the art guild is $12; no charge for members.

CASH PRIZES and ribbons will be awarded by the art guild, and exhibitors also will be competing for purchase awards offered by local business firms.

Artists juried in the '76 fair need not send samples of their work, but other potential exhibitors should send three colored slides for jurying before Aug. 21, closing date for entries. The slides should be accomapnied by a self-addressed stamped envelope and check for space rental to Des Plaines Art Guild, P.O. Box 81, Des Plaines, Ill. 60017. Details are available at 956-0876.

A few winners surface in recent flood of rock

by BRUCE MEYER

Keeping up with the flood of new rock albums is an impossible task, but here's a look at some recent winners:

The Dictators — "Manifest Destiny" (Asylum 7E-1109). Probably because they're from New York and their music is on the harsh side, The Dictators have been frequently lumped in with the punk rockers. But you'll hear little of the stripped-down, two-chord punk sound on this album.

Since their very rough but engaging first LP ("The Dictators Go Girl Crazy" — if the band makes it, it'll be a collector's item), the Dictators have evolved their music into an often riveting blend of solid musicianship, layered arrangements and good harmonies, spiced with a little Alice Cooper-inspired rock 'n' roll theater.

NICEST TUNE on this album is a lengthy track called "Steppin' Out," a heavy duty rocker that builds dramatically and displays the band at its thunderous best, if you can get away with turning the stereo up that far.

It's all straightforward, highly derivative stuff; viewed from that perspective, the punk bands at least have a certain gutter originality the Dictators lack. Yet what they do, the Dictators do very well.

RED Speedwagon — "You Get What You Play For" (Epic). With the new age of the live album now in full swing, it's become a kind of music business game to see who will be the next to follow Frampton down what's proved to be a lucrative new way of "breaking" established acts into the big time.

A lot of bets are currently going down for RED, a veteran group that has been plugging away in the Midwest since the late '60s, never quite able to grow beyond regional success.

"YOU GET WHAT You Play For" is certainly the best live album of the year so far, a beautifully recorded two-record collection of virtually nonstop boogie that captures the high energy of a series of RED performances from Atlanta to Kansas City.

The whole album's good, but sides two and three — particularly "Keep Pushin'," "157 Riverside Avenue" and "Ridin' The Storm Out" — are the best examples of live, no-gimmick rock 'n' roll since Bob Seger's "Live Bullet" LP of last year.

"The South's Greatest Hits" (Capricorn CP-0187) — For the past five or six years, a disproportionate share of America's best rock has come from south of the Mason-Dixon line, and nobody is more gleefully aware of it than the Southerners.

AS BELLIGERENTLY proud of their music as of their cultural roots, the best Southern musicians have become a loose mutual admiration society — which is one reason this album exists.

It's a pretentious title, of course, but most of the selections (from Lynyrd Skynyrd's "Sweet Home Alabama" to Gregg Allman's "Midnight Rider") certainly deserve inclusion. Second-guessing could turn it into a two or even three-record set, but there it is — a fine collection for any True Gray follower of Rebel Rock.

Frank Gorshin's great at being someone else

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Night out

Impressionist Frank Gorshin complains that he doesn't have a personality of his own. His analyst charges him for group therapy, and his wife welcomes him home with "The Gang's All Here."

After watching him in action at the Arlington Park Hilton last week, it's easy to understand the mixup. His imitations of such show business greats as Dean Martin, John Wayne and George C. Scott are almost flawless, and you find yourself applauding Martin or Wayne, not Gorshin.

Much of Gorshin's appeal can be traced to the totality of his impressions: he is one of the few mimics who can elicit a round of applause even before he opens his mouth.

HE SPENDS SEVERAL minutes working into Marlon Brando, and thanks to Gorshin's convincing sneer and tough-guy pose, you recognize Stanley Kowalski well before he starts talking about Blanche. It's the same story with the '50s idol James Dean. Gorshin simply shrugs his shoulders and transforms into a perfect "rebel without a cause" — he doesn't say a word, and he doesn't need to.

To be sure, most of Gorshin's impressions are standard by now — Anthony Newley, Dean Martin and Alfred Hitchcock are easy targets for any impressionists. But he handles Wallace Berry and Rod Steiger with the same authority he gives Wayne, and his caricature of Jack Nicholson in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" is uncanny.

Gorshin spikes his act with a few vocals and some corny humor, and he gets plenty of support from the Jack Prager Orchestra. But the extras aren't necessary. Gorshin received two standing ovations after his opening performance, and it's obvious the cheers would be there even without the added attractions.

GORSHIN IS THE second entertainer to appear at the Hilton as part of the hotel's new "Saturday Night Live" package. Barbara McNair appears this Saturday. Also booked are Bobby Rydell, Edie Adams and Pete Condoli, Myron Cohen, Frankie Laine, George Gobel and Cathy Johnson, and Jerry Van Dyke and Ann Jones.

Package prices range from $10 to $27.50. The higher price includes a complete dinner in the Top of the Towers.

The doctor says

Emphysema victim needs some advice

It seems very hard to get some information about emphysema. I am afflicted with it and want to learn all about it and what I can do to help myself. I have been to three physicians, but only when I needed to see a doctor because I had become congested and needed an antibiotic shot.

They'd say exercise just enough, not too much or too little, but what is too much or too little?

After a shot of penicillin I feel just great for about a week. I've been told that I shouldn't get it too often as I'd build up an immunity to it. Is that right?

Whatever you can tell me about emphysema would be appreciated, not only by myself but I know by many others who are afflicted and would like to learn more about it.

Emphysema is a chronic form of lung disease. It is characterized by constriction of the small air passages inside the lungs.

Think of the air sacs that are filled with air as little balloons. At the opening of the balloons is a muscular band and it constricts to narrow the opening of the balloon. As a result it is hard to squeeze all the air out of the balloon. The tiny air sacs remain overdistended with stale air because it is hard to force all the air out.

To give you a better picture of how the lungs work I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-4, Keeping Your Lungs Fit. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Because the movement of oxygen and carbon dioxide is not normal the person with emphysema has trouble increasing the oxygen supply to his body. That usually means a person is limited in how much exercise he can do. How much exercise you can do depends upon how much oxygen can be delivered to your working muscles. Without the oxygen you cannot release the energy needed for muscular work.

That is why your doctors are vague on how much exercise you can do. The best rule is to do mild exercise, such as walking, which is continuous, that you can do over a longer period of time. Avoid peak exertion that requires the sudden delivery of lots of oxygen. That way you won't overwhelm your body with oxygen needs before you know it — beyond the level that your lungs can cope with.

Respiratory infections often make the constriction worse. That is why antibiotics are used. Depending upon the case they may or may not be necessary. Chronic lung infections often require almost continuous antibiotic treatment.

No, you don't become immune to penicillin, but you can develop an allergy to it or develop an infection with penicillin-resistant organisms. You need to rely on your doctor about the use of such medicines.

Of course, you should not smoke under any circumstances. Often tobacco is a major factor in developing emphysema. You need to avoid areas of air pollution as well. If you are heavy, get your weight down. That way you can do more despite your lung disease.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

Garden fence will discourage rabbits

Dear Roberta: I love animals, but four-legged pests are invading and destroying my vegetable garden. Rabbits, mice and chipmunks are ruining my lovely young leaves. Garden books tell how to poison the little creatures, but I'd never consider those means. What to do, before my cabbage patch disappears? — Michele Farley

You could post a tight mesh fence deep into the ground Peter Rabbit notwithstanding, your fencing needn't be of the very heavy type, but it should be at least three feet high. And there are effective repellents, but poisonous, to keep out mice and chipmunks that can burrow under a fence. Two garden experts suggest that you apply to the foliage a solution of three ounces Epsom salts to a gallon of water, or dust on lime or blood-meal while the fliage is wet.

Dear Roberta: I learned from "The Home Line" why fruits and vegetables are shipped slightly immature, but it's frustrating to have to watch peaches, plums and nectarines sitting hard as rocks on the kitchen window sill. Do you know a way to speed up the ripening? — Jean O'Connell

To hurry up these fruits, leave them sealed in the plastic bags you probably brought them home in. Squeeze each piece gently as it turns color. Some ripen faster than others. Don't keep ripe fruit bagged. Ripening continues even in the refrigerator, and you could end up with mushy fruit.

Dear Roberta: A friend made me a clever object to help hold cookbooks upright and open so pages won't flip over. It's really a bean bag, made of heavy curtain fabric, three inches wide by eight long, and filled with exactly two pounds of buckshot. — Trish Walters.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott E. Smith

Weddings

Mary Sue Carlson – Scott E. Smith

Two receptions for Mary Sue Carlson and Scott Everett Smith followed their wedding June 11 in Faith Evangelical Free Church, Spirit Lake, Iowa.

The first was hosted by the bride's parents, the Cliff Carlsons, in the church hall immediately after the 2 p.m. ceremony. The second took place two weeks later for Chicago area friends in the Arlington Heights home of Scott's parents, the Wade Smiths.

Mary, from Spirit Lake, and Scott met while attending Trinity College in Deerfield where she graduated this spring. He is a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School and in his senior year at Trinity.

FOR THE double ring wedding ceremony, the bride chose her sister Kathy as maid of honor and the groom's sister Peggy and Linda Eclov, Brookings, S.D., as bridesmaids.

Scott's cousin, Mark Fava, Rolling Meadows, was best man. Groomsmen were Scott Johnson, Des Moines, and Randy Swetman, Arlington Heights.

The bridal pair went to Yellowstone Park for their honeymoon and are now living in Highwood, Ill.

Connie Hanson – Donald A. Hedlund

Connie Marie Hanson and Donald A. Hedlund wrote their own vows, including a responsive reading with the congregation, for their wedding June 25 at the Ivanhoe (Ill.) Congregational Church.

Connie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne A. Hanson, Mundelein, and Donald the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Hedlund, Mount Prospect.

For the 7 p.m. ceremony, Connie wore a gown of white Chantilly lace over a hoop skirt and with it a fingertip veil edged in matching lace. She carried a cascade of white roses, carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Peggy Lambert, Mundelein, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Nancy Kobiella, Mundelein, and Connie's sister Nancy.

ALL WERE dressed identically in apricot gowns and flowered capes. They held cascades of white carnations, apricot silk roses and baby's breath.

Connie's sister Julie, 9, attended as flower girl. She wore a handmade apricot dress edged in lace and carried a white basket filled with white carnations and apricot silk roses.

Jeff Williams, Wheeling, was best man. Groomsmen were Larry Turney, Ingleside, and Connie's brother Scott. Ushers were Connie's brother Craig, Donald's brother Doug, and his brother-in-law, Terrance Henshaw, Mount Prospect.

A RECEPTION with dinner and dancing followed for 200 guests at Countryside Fire Station. The couple then left for a week long honeymoon in Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Hedlund

Connie attended the College of Lake County and is employed at Anchor Coupling, Libertyville. Donald, a graduate of Prospect High School, attended Harper College and the University of Maryland. He served in the U.S. Air Force in real estate management and security police before working at Allstate Insurance, where he and Connie met.

The newlyweds are at home in Buffalo Grove.

Neighbors fete couple's 60th anniversary

It was pouring rain in Des Plaines the morning of June 30, but nothing could deter the surprise party for the 60th wedding anniversary of Clarendon and Julia Sedgwick.

Eight of the couple's neighbors arrived at the Sedgwick home that morning, bringing all the food along with their congratulations and best wishes. They also had sent a bouquet of flowers as an anniversary gift.

The Sedgwicks have lived in their home for almost 30 years, moving there in 1948 from Chicago. "Clitz," as Clarendon has been called since childhood, and Julia grew up in Chicago, met as teenagers through relatives and were married June 30, 1917, in a minister's home in the city.

The couple have two daughters, Sherry, now deceased, and Alice, who lives at home.

Clitz retired in 1965 as head of the stockroom at Klein & Son, manufacturer of electrical tools in Skokie.

Channel 9 seeks 'Star Trek' contract

WGN officials are negotiating for a Paramount Pictures package that includes the prime-time, weekly showing of a new "Star Trek" series and new television movies beginning in April.

WGN bosses say they will know next week if Channel 9 will carry the syndicated package being prepared specially for independent and affiliate television stations.

WGN also plans to carry more first-run programming produced by Operation Prime Time which created "Testimony of Two Men," the six-hour, three-part novel which aired in May. WGN has played a major role in developing the Operation Prime Time unit as a source of affordable, original non-network programming.

IN NAILING DOWN their fall program schedule, which is still not complete, WGN officials said Thursday they recently purchased a $6 million film package for the station's weekday 8 and 10:30 p.m. movie slots that will include "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," "Tora, Tora, Tora," "Cinderella Liberty," "Hello, Dolly," "Paper Chase," "Airport '75," "The Neptune Disaster" and "West Side Story."

In the area of special programming, WGN plans to carry the fifth David Frost-Richard Nixon interview this fall and has the option of rerunning the first of the four Nixon-Frost interview that aired in May.

WGN expects to purchase another educational drama series produced by the Mobil Oil Co. that will be similar to the "Ten Who Dared" series which aired earlier this year. The station also plans to air "Fight Against Slavery" (Britain's answer to "Roots") and to rerun the novel adaptation of "Testimony of Two Men" this fall.

In the area of regular shows, WGN sources said the station plans to run the old "Family Affair" series weekdays at 5 p.m. and the "My Three Sons" series weekdays at 5:30 p.m. in September. They will replace "Andy Griffith" which will be discontinued and "I Dream of Jeannie" which will be rescheduled.

OTHER NEWCOMERS to the list of regular WGN programming include the more recent version of Jackie Gleason's "Honeymooners" at 6:30 p.m. Sundays and new episodes of Leonard Nimoy's "In Search Of" which will air at 7 p.m. Saturdays.

In the area of children's programming, the station plans to continue "Bozo's Circus" weekdays at noon and will run an hour-long version of the "Tarzan" Sundays at 10 a.m. WGN will air as many of the "New Mickey Mouse Club" and "New Howdy Doody" episodes it has in stock from September through January before both of those shows are discontinued. The production companies for each of those revived children's shows have found the programs too costly to continue.

WGN officials say they will announce their complete fall schedule next month and say it will include more first-run, original programming than the station has ever carried.

Outside of regular programming, WGN sources said a few minor changes will be made in the WGN news operation including a new and more contemporary stage set for the station's weeknight newscasts.

TV NOTES:

• WTTW officials contend "Kup's Show" will continue to air Saturdays at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 11, but admit there is a question whether the local talk show will be syndicated nationally throughout the public broadcasting system. The Sears Roebuck Foundation provided a $45,000 grant to finance the production of the show from March through the end of this month. The show was cancelled by WMAQ TV, Channel 5 and picked up by Channel 11. The foundation is pondering over whether it should provide a $300,000 grant to cover the production and national syndication of the "Kup's Show" for one year, and is expected to announce a decision on the matter next week.

Meanwhile, WTTW says it can find the funds in its budget to underwrite the local production of "Kup's Show" if the foundation grant does not come through, although decisions to that effect have not been made.

• The people over at Chicago's public broadcasting station, WTTW, have been putting their heads together these days, trying to come up with some new ideas for programming. One of those ideas was producing a new local children's show along the lines of "Sesame Street" and "Electric Company."

STEVE EDWARDS

The ratings of both national shows have been gradually dropping and the WTTW bosses believe it may be time for a fresh children's series, maybe one they could syndicate throughout the public broadcasting system that would generate funds for the station.

• As reported in this column several weeks ago, WTTW plans to carry the system's new Dick Cavett interview show, which it does not believe will interfere or conflict with two of its popular interview shows — "John Callaway Interviews" seen weekdays at 7:30 p.m. and "Kup's Show." Channel 11 is offering Callaway's show to the PBS network. The problem is, however, despite the excellence of the show, that 70 per cent of the material is Chicago-oriented. Callaway may have to work in more national-oriented interviews to broaden the show's scope if it is to be syndicated.

• It may be that the ABC network has some big plans for Channel 7's "A.M. Chicago" host Steve Edwards. Last week, Edwards filled in for vacationing Sandy Hill on ABC's "Good Morning, America" program. Edwards already enjoys a wealth of exposure (not to mention a six digit salary) as host of the weekday morning talk show and his own "Friday Night with Steve Edwards" in addition to giving the weather reports on the station's 5 p.m. newscast. With Edwards' three-year contract expiring at the year's end, there has been some talk of him moving on to another city, but WLS-TV sources say Edwards is expected to stay in Chicago and continue his prospering relationship with the ABC network.

• New Channel 2 anchorman Mort Crim has arrived in Chicago and is busy getting his personal and professional life readjusted. He officially begins work Aug. 1 but does not begin co-anchoring the 6 p.m. newscast with Bill Kurtis until Aug. 8. On Sept. 12 he will become part of revamped Lee Phillip show to be called "Noonbreak with Lee Philip and Mort Crim."

WBBM-TV anchorman Walter Jacobson will continue to solo the station's 5 p.m. newscast and co-anchor the 10 p.m. news show with Kurtis. Jacobson also will continue his "Perspectives" during the 6 p.m. newscast and reportedly does not feel slighted for having lost his 6 p.m. anchor seat to newcomer Crim. "He welcomes the extra time," one station source said.

• WTTW has transferred its operating license for UHF Channel 20 to the Chicago Metropolitan Higher Education Council which will be programming college credit courses on the airwaves beginning in mid-1979. WTTW, Channel 11, once programmed education classes on Channel 20 but can no longer afford to maintain the additional channel. The council has obtained a $964,173 state grant to construct a programming and operations station that will serve all interested schools that are within a 60 mile radius of Chicago. The nonprofit council is comprised of Chicago State University, the City Colleges of Chicago, Northwestern Illinois University, Governor's State University College and the University of Illinois Circle Campus.

• Actor William Conrad hosts the first of a two-part special highlighting the "World Famous Moscow Circus" at 7 p.m. today on Channel 2. Part two airs July 29.

Moscow circus special today

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — This circus has only one ring, the audience claps in cadence and all of the performers who are at risk wear safety wires — that's the Moscow circus and it's marvelous.

CBS is bringing "The World Famous Moscow Circus" into American homes in a two-part special to be broadcast today and July 29 at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.

William Conrad, looking like one of the circus bears but without that beautiful silky coat, is host for the first hour and Shirley Jones, wearing a fur coat any bear would envy, is hostess for part two.

AS CONRAD points out, the Russian circus is a more intimate presentation than the gaudy Ringing Bros., Barnum and Bailey extravanza.

While the performers dress up — one equestrienne wore an incredibly tiered sky blue gown while mounted on a dancing horse who could outstep Arthur Murray — the tone is quieter, the action less frenzied and more concentrated.

Win at bridge

Careful bidding assures 7

The bidding of today's hand is worthy of study since it shows Alan Sontag and Peter Weichsel, one of the strongest pairs in the world at their best.

The bidding starts out slowly enough with Alan following up his two-club response with a bid of three diamonds. Peter isn't sure what Alan has at this point, but he can't go wrong with a three-heart cue bid.

Now Alan merely bids three spades to set spades as the spot for the final contract. Peter just bids four spades. He has no reason to go past game since his opening is in the minimum range.

On the other hand, Alan is interested in a slam and bids five clubs to show the tops in that suit. Peter, who has already signed off at four spades can afford to show his second-round diamond control and now Alan can be sure of the grand slam if his partner holds the ace and queen of trumps. Alan's five notrump is the old Culbertson grand slam force and Peter bids seven spades because he does hold two of the top three honors.

Peter makes seven by ruffing his two little hearts with two of Alan's three trumps.

Ask Andy

CB frequency set aside for private use

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Bill Battersby, 11, of St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, for his question:

WHAT EXACTLY IS CITIZEN'S BAND RADIO?

During the past few years citizens' band radio, also called CB radio, has grown tremendously in popularity. The communications system, used by private citizens and operated over short distances, transmits on a group of radio frequencies reserved especially for private use.

CB radio is a handy means of communication between two spots not connected by telephone. Motorists, and truck drivers especially, find it convenient to talk with others on the highway or with people at home or in the office.

Most citizen band radios are what we call transceivers, devices that both can transmit a message and receive one. Some CB units, however, only receive radio signals and do not send them.

Transmission of CB messages usually is for distances of less than five miles in cities and up to about 20 miles in the country. Broadcast range varies with atmospheric conditions, how the land lies and the type of antenna used. It is most important to regulate carefully the design and height of the set's antenna as well as the amount of power supplied to the transmitter.

Government regulations exist both in Canada and the United States which limit the amount of power a CB transmitter may use. No more than four watts of power may be used.

CB radio in the United States has 23 channels, with frequencies of 26.965 to 27.255 megahertz. In Canada CB operations are called General Radio Service and 22 channels are used with the frequencies of 26.97 to 27.27 megahertz.

Both Canada and the United States make it a requirement that any CB transmitter of more than one-tenth watt must be licensed.

Walkie-Talkies used by many people also operate on citizens' band radio. In most cases, these units are of a low wattage and do not require licensing.

Remote controls for some model airplanes and also garage doors which open automatically at the touch of a button in your car operate on CB radio frequencies.

A Canadian citizen interested in a license to operate a CB unit should contact his nearest district office of the Dept. of Communications. In the United States, any citizen who is 18 years of age or older may obtain license information from the Federal Communications Commission in Gettysburg, Pa., 17325.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Jean Clements, 11, of Staten Island, N.Y., for her question:

WHAT DO TONSILS DO?

Tonsils, those fleshy folds in your throat, form the first line of defense against airborne infections. The tonsils and adjoining lymph tissue trap invading bacteria and destroy them.

Children living in close quarters at home and attending overcrowded schools, scientists have found, tend to have larger tonsils than those living in less crowded conditions. This probably is caused by the additional bacteria that the tonsils are attempting to destroy.

Inflammation of the tonsils is called tonsillitis. Sometimes doctors decide to remove the tonsils.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Brick paving in garden forms natural 'living room'

of Klehm Nursery

Create a patio and transform a corner of your yard into a summer living room.

The patio can be laid wet (concrete or blocks set in concrete) or dry (blocks set on a base of builders sand), although the dry method is easiest.

MAKING A PATIO is simple and inexpensive with concrete masonry units. There are many different patterns and styles. Choose from clay paving bricks, smooth concrete slabs, rough concrete blocks or exposed aggregate blocks.

When choosing stone for a patio laid in sand, remember larger, thicker pieces will stay level longer than smaller, thinner ones. By keeping joints to a minimum width, sand and gravel will remain in place and maintenance will be minimal.

If possible, plot the construction site on the north or east side of shade trees or buildings.

MARK AREA BOUNDARIES for patio with stakes and string. Excavate soil to a depth that will accommoderate about a 2-inch layer of sand with block laid on top. At the same time, establish slope for drainage — about one inch per 15 feet — away from buildings. After smoothing the graded soil, add sand to a depth of about two inches. Then establish an edging to help the sand in by laying patio blocks on edge in a trench dug along the outlines of the patio. You also can use 1" x 4" redwood strips, which resist rotting, fastened to 2" x 2" stakes.

After the sand has been laid, level it with a straight board. The base then should be thoroughly soaked and tamped down to insure filling of voids.

Start in a corner and carefully lay the blocks. A previously planned pattern on paper will save correcting work in laying. Shift the blocks until they line up perfectly. Use a trowel or a sharp stick to sedge the blocks into position. It's easy to change the level or correct errors. Just lift the block that's too high or too low, and sprinkle more sand or take some away.

A taut string or board long enough to cover the width of the patio and attached to side guide stakes, will help to insure a level and attractive patio. After all the blocks have been laid, complete by sprinkling loose fine sand over the entire surface. Sweep into the cracks between the blocks and clean off the surplus with a hose. This will also help to compact the sand into the joints.

THE CROWNING TOUCH to any outdoor living area is the addition of pools, fountains or waterfalls to enhance the beauty of the patio. Most of these additions require only electricity at the site because the initial water added is recirculated. The ultimate placement of these pieces should be included in the initial patio plan so that underground wires can be laid under the patio itself.

There are many different choices in types of statuary. Lighted pagoda lanterns lend an oriental flavor, statues spewing water are reminiscent of the gardens of Rome and natural lighted waterfalls give that woodsy effect.

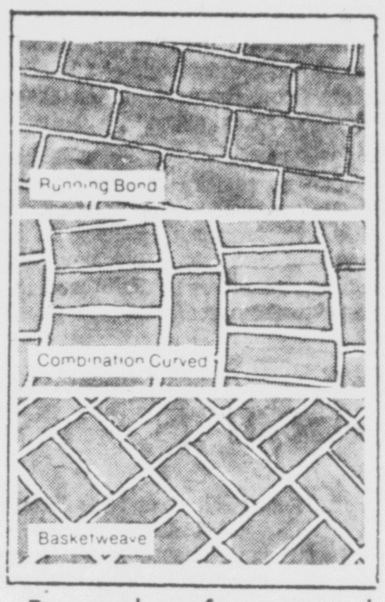
PANSIES WITH happy-face flowers can brighten a partly-shady garden area all summer long.



Personal preference and skill determine which pattern to choose.

Fragrant irises win admirers

by DEVON REAY

Why is a certain light-blue iris, one of the long-established and very tenacious bearded irises that you have been trying to give away or otherwise dispose of for years, all at once, so choice, so desirable, that you intend to eventually transplant it to a specifically prepared bed?

FRAGRANCE. "That light blue is f r a g r a n t , ' ' a neighbor observes. "Irises have no odor," you reply, but just to be sure, you sniff the blue. He is right, and the scent is unique and very pleasing.

The the exception of dwarf bearded, they have delightful scents. "Iris reticulata has a fragrance reminiscent of violets and a small bowl perfumes an entire room," says one catalog.

THE SIBERIANS have such deep and definite colors and such beauty of form you overlook their lack of fragrance. When a clump, such as the dark violet Caesar's brother is left in one spot, it flowers heavily year after year and the clump gets bigger and bigger. But if you move it, even four feet away, the following spring it may produce only two small blossoms instead of the usual 50 or so big shapely flowers.

Perry's Pygmy, not as dark as Caesar's Brother but earlier — it usually flowers a week before Caesar's Brother — is a dwarf Siberian 20 inches high. But its leaves are as high or higher than those of 30-inch Siberians, so you can barely see the flowers down among the leaves. This drawback makes you appreciate another virtue of Caesar's Brother, Anniversary, and Blue brilliant — visibility.

Dozens of perfect flowers of rich, pure colors stand well above the spear-shaped leaves where they are clearly visib.e

Jaffe urges Thompson to sign 8 sex crime bills

The chairman of the Illinois Rape Study Committee, State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, has called on Gov. James R. Thompson to sign into law eight bills dealing with sex crimes.

The bills now on the governor's desk are:

• House Bill 234, which creates felony offenses for soliciting for juvenile prostitution and juvenile pimping less than the age of 16. The current law makes these offenses only misdemeanors.

• House Bill 270 provides that any person who has sexual intercourse or performs an act of deviate sexual conduct with a natural or stepchild commits aggravated incest.

• House Bill 637 authorizes the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid to provide medical services for rape victims.

• House Bill 639 requires that to be convicted of being a sexually dangerous person a defendant must be found guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

The bill brings Illinois into conformity with court-set constitutional standards and will give the state better control and custody over sexually dangerous persons, Jaffe said.

• House Bill 760 limits the admissibility of evidence of a victim's prior sexuality activity in rape and criminal sexual assault trials.

• House Bill 761 allows the state to investigate the background of foster parents.

• House Bill 1185 redefines rape to include situations involving only the threat of force and limits the use of victim's consent as a defense in cases involving patients or inmates. It also calls for prison terms of two to four years for various rape and sexual assault offenses.

• House Bill 1186 requires the appointment of a guardian to protect the rights and best interests of a minor in court where the minor is the alleged victim of sexual abuse.

"The people of Illinois have been demanding quick, effective governmental remedies for present inadequate laws and policies in the areas of sex crime involving both adults and children," Jaffe said in a letter to Thompson.

Sixty-eight Northwest suburban girls were honored recently when the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County had its annual recognition for First Class Scouts at the Niles Recreation Center.

Candidates for first class earn their award through badgework or "cadette challenges."

The categories studied by the girls include challenge of the arts, community, environment, international understanding, my heritage, knowing myself, the out-of-doors and today's world.

4-H Club Fair set this weekend

Competitions, displays and workshops will highlight the North Suburban Cook County 4-H Fair today through Sunday near Barrington.

The fair, sponsored by the local 4-H Club chapter with headquarters in Rolling Meadows, will open at 11 a.m. today at the Knights of Columbus Grounds on U.S. Rte. 14 and Kelsey Road.

Included with the traditional 4-H livestock and home crafts exhibits will be workshops on cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and crime prevention; chicken-flying, frog-jumping and watermelon seed-splitting contests; and a 1977 4-H King and Queen coronation, hot-air balloon rides, a magic show and a dance.

Local businesses who will participate at the fair include Sherwin-Williams outlet at 229 E. Northwest Highway, Palatine; Weber-Stephen Products Co., 100 N. Hickory Ave., Arlington Heights, manufacturers of Weber barbecue kettles; the Stretch & Sew Fabrics store at 1423 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg; and Rainbow Yarns, of Arlington Heights.

Finalists for the 4-H King and Queen include Holly Vogt, of 122 W. Robertson St., Palatine; Randy Kiner, of 408 N. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect; Julie Gibeau, Terri Lebar, Mindy Wilson, John Cramer and Lee Goebbert, all of Barrington; and Glen Kosirog, of Chicago.

Economic aid plan for poor, aged

The Community Economic Development Assn. of Cook County will begin an 8-week program Monday to aid the poor and the elderly.

The Special Emergency Crisis Intervention Program will aid those families that were unable to pay utility and fuel bills or had strained their budgets because of last winter's severe weather.

The program will allot up to $250 to families and persons whose income does not exceed 125 per cent of poverty guidelines set by the federal government.

Those eligible in Cook County include persons or families whose income does not exceed $3,717 for a single person; $4,913 for a two-member household; $6,113 for a three-member household; and $7,313 for a four-member household.

"Energy costs have risen at four times the rate of welfare payments," said Bob Taylor, coordinator of the program. "Even before last winter's severe weather, poor and elderly people were paying 60 to 80 per cent of their income for shelter and heat."

Applications for aid in the Northwest suburbs may be obtained at the Northwest Opportunity Center, 410 Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights.

OFFICE HELP. Manny Trillo, Cub second baseman, forces Atlanta's Rowland Office and fires to first, but not in time to double up the batter, Gary Matthews, in the fifth inning Thursday. Trillo drove in two runs and Cubs won, 4-3, in 12 innings.

Buckner pulls victory out of part-time bat

by ART MUGALIAN

When he's healthy, Bill Buckner of the Cubs is supposed to be able to start 160 games, field his position like Hal Chase, and steal 25 bases on instinct alone. That's in addition to hitting .300 blindfolded.

When his bum ankle and his bum thigh have him riding the bench like a wounded soldier, Buckner is reduced to the role of pinch-hitter — pinch-hitter extraordinaire, or course.

HIS GAME-WINNING single with one out in the bottom of the 12th inning against Atlanta Thursday gave the first-place Cubs a 4-3 victory and left 21,800 Wrigley Field fans with the distinct impression that Buckner can do about anything he wants.

Lately, those fans haven't seen much of Buckner except as a substitute batter when the chips are down. So far this season Bill is hitting .388 as a pinch-batter, with five RBIs.

"It was lucky, really," admitted Buckner with more modesty than was called for. "That's all pinch-hitting is — luck."

BRAVES' RIGHTHANDER Rick Camp had relieved veteran knuckleballer Phil Niekro at the start of the 12th after Niekro had pretty much frustrated the Cubs all day. Camp, a rookie whose record is now 5-2, fanned Steve Ontiveros but walked Trillo and Joe Wallis before Buckner stepped up to hit for George Mitterwald.

"He can throw pretty hard but he had already been warming up three or four times," said Buckner. "He was keeping the ball low trying to get a double play but he got a fastball a little bit inside. Montanez was playing off the bag but I hit it pretty hard."

Paul Reuschel (4-1) got the win in relief with a pair of no-hit innings after Bill Bonham and Willie Hernandez pitched the first 10 frames.

The relief work turned in by Reuschel and Hernandez was a welcome sight for manager Herman Franks, who will be operating without the help of Bruce Sutter for an estimated 10 days. Sutter, the majors' top fireman, is out of action with a bad back muscle.

"Those guys are good pitchers," said Franks, trying to convince reporters that Sutter's absence can be weathered.

FOR THE LAST place Western Division Braves, no manner of relief help would have approached Niekro's effectiveness. The 38-year-old righty, 9-11 this year after a horrendous start, breezed through the Cub lineup with tantalizing ease, except for the fourth inning when the Cubs scored three times to wipe out a 1-0 deficit.

With one away, Jose Cardenal doubled over rightfielder Jeff Burroughs' head and went to third when Niekro balked trying to pick him off second. Larry Biittner walked and Bobby Murcer came to the plate for what turnedd out to be the key moment in the old ball game.

Murcer bounced an easy grounder to Montanez at first and Montanez, a fielding wizard, looked to second to start an inning-ending double play. But, out of the corner of his eye, the Braves' infielder spied Cardenal halfway to the plate. He fired home and Jose dashed back into third safely ahead of Biff Pocoroba's toss.

"If he throw to second it's a sure double play," said Cardenal. "I have to give myself up so there's only two out. I don't know how I get back, but I was safe."

NOW WITH THE bases loaded, Ontiveros bounced to Gilbreath for what might have been another DP. But the Braves' second baseman bobbled the ball and could only retire the batter as the tying run scored. Trillo hit Niekro's next pitch for a single through the middle, scoring a pair of runs.

"Niekro is tough," said Cardenal, who was 1-for-5 against him. "On the double, he got a knuckleball up high to me. When he keep it down, you can forget it, I can't hit it."

The Braves tied the score in the sixth with two runs off Bonham. Burroughs singled off the Cub pitcher's glove and advanced on a walk to Pocoroba. Junior Moore sacrificed before Darrel Chaney drove in a run with a groundout and Gilbreath singled home the other.

THE BRAVES HAD scored in the first on a walk, a sacrifice and a hit by Montanez.

Cub centerfielder Jerry Morales started the game on the bench because of a sore knee but managed to see pinch-hitting action. Morales was hit in the knee by a pitch from Sparky Lyle during Tuesday's All-Star Game. The injury doesn't appear to be serious.

'Mad Hungarian' is hair-raising

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — August A. Busch Jr., owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, Thursday night lifted the club's rule against facial hair but told relief pitcher Al Hrabosky his moustache had better improve his game.

"Work your but off for a pennant and quit complaining," Busch said he told Hrabosky.

Busch emphasized his confidence in Rapp by announcing he has given him a one-year extension in his contract to next year.

ASKED WHETHER Hrabosky can regain his fastball with his moustache, Busch said, "I hope to God he can."

Hrabosky said, "I firmly believe this ballclub is going to win. I think it (the lifting of the hair rule) will definitely help my production. That's all I want, flat and simple."

Busch made a rate clubhouse appearance before meeting reporters. He read a statement of his discussion with Hrabosky.

"To say I'm disappointed with you would be an understatement," he said.

He cited Hrabosky's complaints during spring training and his refusal to meet with Rapp, an action that cost Hrabosky a two-day suspension. Busch said after the suspension was lifted, Hrabosky indicated there would be no further conflict.

INSTEAD, HE SAID, Hrabosky resumed his criticism of Rapp and blamed his own slump on being forced to shave his moustache.

"Well, young man, if you're looking for trouble, you can believe August A. Busch Jr. will give you more than you can handle," Busch said.

"Apparently you're not happy with the $140,000 a year we are paying you."

He said he was suspending the rule on facial hair only because he wants to avoid a court battle. Hrabosky had said he might file a grievance over the rule.

"I DON'T INTEND to give you the satisfaction of dragging the Cardinals and baseball into the courtroom," Busch said. "We've had enough of that. To me this whole thing is childish."

However, he said, "You've pushed me into a corner and no one does that to me." He said he would not place Hrabosky on the waiver list and that his status with the club will be reviewed at the end of the season.

Hrabosky, 2-4, has been ineffective in his last half dozen relief appearances, at one time giving up four homers in four straight crucial appearances. He has seven saves and a 4.58 ERA.

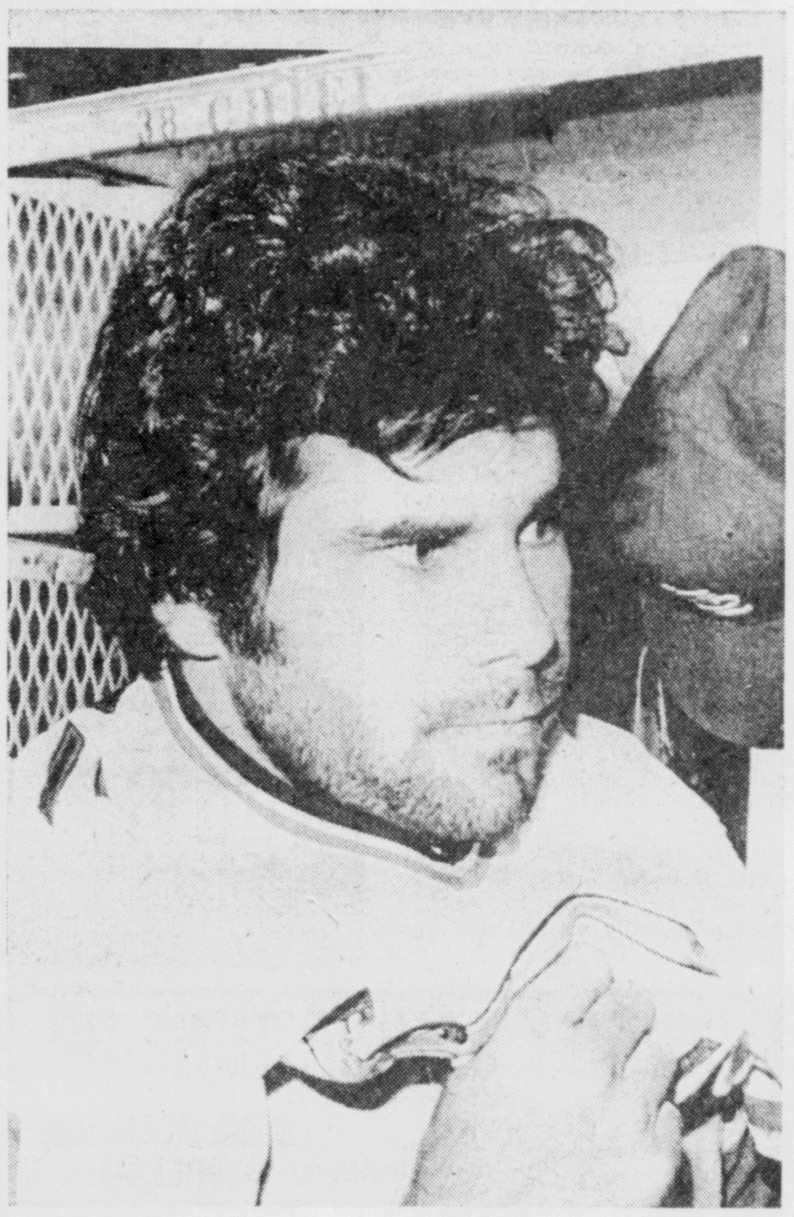
Bob Frisk is on vacation. His column will resume upon his return.



WHAT A CARD. St. Louis reliever Al Hrabosky sports a six-day growth of beard in defiance of Cardinal manager Vern Rapp's rules against facial hair. Club owner August A. Busch Jr. denounced Hrabosky but said he would allow him to grow the beard to avoid a court battle.

Sox hunting Blue Jays with Wood on the hill

When you're hot, you're hot — and that goes double for the White Sox.

Already the winningest team in the American League, the white hot White Sox hope things get a little warmer starting tonight when they begin a mini two-game series in Toronto.

With nagging critics who still don't believe watching, the White Sox will be out to increase their division lead over last year's champ, Kansas City, at the expense of the Blue Jays, the losingest team in the major leagues.

THE PROSPECT of putting some daylight between themselves and the rest of the division is bright now, since Toronto's record is as bad as the White Sox' is good. The last-place Blue Jays are 34-58, while the Sox have nearly the reverse mark of 54-36.

The chance to fatten up on league also-rans ends with the Toronto series, though, when the White Sox begin an eight-game stretch to end the month against Boston, Detroit and Kansas City.

The short stay in Toronto ends the season series between the two teams, even though over two months of play remain. The scheduling nightmare created by the American League expansion also calls for the final game between the Sox and Kansas City to be played Aug. 7.

WILBUR WOOD is expected to start for the Sox tonight as manager Bob Lemon readjusts the pitching rotation.

Lemon plans to use a five-man rotation, which means Wilbur won't be starting every third day, as he did under Chuck Tanner. But Lemon hopes Wood will be available in the bullpen between starts and that will bolster the pen which has only one lefthander, Dave Hamilton.

Following Wood in the rotation Saturday afternoon will be southpaw Ken Kravec, who's been impressive since being called up from Iowa six weeks ago. Kravec has compiled a 6-2 mark in that time and will also bolster the sox second-half effort.

Following Kravec Sunday when the Sox move onto Boston will be Francisco Barrios, then Steve Stone on Monday when the Sox wind up the road trip. Chris Knapp will open the homestand Tuesday against Detroit.

State 16-inch softball action unfolds in Des Plaines

by VIC NOVAK

The Herald area will be strongly represented in the 12th annual Illinois Park and Recreation Assn. Men's 16-Inch Softball State Tournament Saturday and Sunday in Des Plaines.

Teams representing Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Waycinden and Des Plaines will be competing against 46 other squads from across the state. Each team represents only one town.

No matter who wins this year's tournament, it won't be the defending champion Bridgeview Bobcats. The Bobcats told Des Plaines Park District officials their schedule would not allow entering the 1977 tourney.

The local team with the best chance for the tournament title is the Des Plaines Youngsters. They have received a first-round bye along with the Broadview Nocturnes, Maywood Villa Maria West, Villa Park Squires, Duke's Place from Astor Park (Chicago), Kelly Park (Chicago), Morton Grove Interim Jokers, Evanston Stones, and the Amalgamonsters.

Action in the single-elimination meet will be held at five Des Plaines parks Saturday. Fans can see teams at Rand Park, from 8 a.m. - 8 p.m. Blackhawk Park from 8 a.m. - 3:30 p.m., Tomahawk Park from 8 a.m. - 4:45 p.m., West Park from 8 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. and South Park from 8 a.m. - 1 p.m.

All local teams will be playing Saturday morning. The following is a list of each local team's opening round game:

Therma-Flow of Arlington Heights vs. Hanover Park Gents at Tomahawk, 10:30; Mount Prospect vs. Wilmette at Blackhawk, 9:15; Just Us of Hoffman Estates vs. Bank of Elk Grove at Rand Park, diamond two, 8; Hardin-Paving Hornets of Schaumburg vs. P. J. Construction of Park Forest at Rand Park, diamond one, 10:30;

The Demons of Rolling Meadows vs. Golf Maine Warriors at Rand Park, diamond one, 8; Wheeling Mudsharks vs. the Lords from Memorial Park at Blackhawk, 10:30; Prospect Heights vs. Deerfield at Rand Park, diamond one, 9:15; and Waycinden Taggers vs. Dunham Park (Chicago) at West Park, 8.

The finals are slated for Rand Park Sunday. Quarterfinals begin at 8 a.m., semifinals at 10:30 a.m., and finals at noon.

Cabildo's Marina and Bold Flame figure to get much attention as a field of seven goes postward in today's Ponder Purse at Arlington. The $9,500 allowance feature will be contested at six furlongs as the eighth race.

Cabildo's Marina was a fast closing second in his last try. The four-year-old Cabildo colt dropped a head decision to stakes winning Famed Comedian in that heat and is in a spot today to record his initial 1977 victory to go along with three seconds and the same number of thirds. Trainer Dewey Smith has named Eddie Delahoussaye to handle the consistent runner.

BOLD FLAME comes in on the heels of a front-running triumph over $30,000 claiming company July 9. Conditioner was George Getz thus scored with the Bold Lad colt at first asking following a $22,500 claim June 29. Bill Gavidia will once again guide the four-year-old.

Country Boy Jim figures to improve off his last effort here since it was his first trip postward in over four months. Trained by Jim Levitch, Sr., the five-year-old son of Admiral's Voyage will be making his sixth appearance of the season and is looking for win number one. In twenty starts last year, Country Boy Jim put together four wins, four seconds and four thirds for earnings near the $50,000 mark.

Poems and Promises, idle since May 5, may need this race and might want more distance before making himself known. The son of Dewan won four of fifteen starts in 1976 and earned $22,730.

OLD TIME FLYER, claimed by Tom Kole for $25,000 July 4, makes his first try for his new owners here. Blanked thus far in nine starts in 1977 in terms of wins, the Olden Times colt landed in the winner's circle six times last season.

Windy City Butch and Peoria County round out the field. Both are three-year-olds and figure to have their hands full here.

IN UNIFORM BUT out of action, Cub relief pitcher Bruce Sutter watches the team loosen up before Thursday's game against Atlanta at Wrigley Field. Sutter, with a 5-1 record and a 1.11 ERA, is suffering from an unusual back ailment and will sit out for 10 days.

Successfully steady Sibille

Ray Sibille is the third leading rider at Arlington Park. He hasn't missed a day of riding at the meet, but has somehow managed to stay out of the limelight.

The major attention has been going to Larry Snyder and Eddie Delahoussaye. Both are well sought after and both usually ride all nine on a card. Sibille quietly waits in the wings and wins his share of races . . . 31 so far in 38 days of racing and that's a good meet by anybody's standard.

Sibille grew up in Sunset, La. just 15 miles from Delahoussaye's hometown of Iberia. Like most Cajun riders, Ray started plying his trade in match races at the bush tracks in his native state. His "graduation" came when he rode his first parimutuel race at Evangeline Downs shortly after turning 16.

"I HAVE A younger brother, Ronnie, who's second leading rider down at Evangeline right now," Sibille said. "Someday he'll leave there and go to bigger tracks too."

Sibille has a pleasant personality, a good sense of humor, and many f r i e n d s. His speech impairment doesn't get in the way of having a good time and it certainly doesn't affect his smooth style of riding.

"When I first started out riding and really for many years, all I found myself on were speedballs who'd always go right to the front," Sibille recalled. "It seemed like every race I rode I'd be on the lead.

"That all changed a couple of years ago, though. Maybe it was that I started riding different kind of horses, but now I feel much more comfortable and sure of myself on a horse coming from off the pace. You win more races that way. Wayne Catalano (another Cajun rider) learned that this year and now he's third leading rider in the country."

SIBILLE HAS made Chicago a regular stop since 1973. In fact, it's more than just a stop now as he bought a home in suburban Addision where Ray, wife Dot and child now reside.

"I've always liked Chicago. Maybe it's because I've always won races here. I've never been a leading rider here or anywhere else yet but I'm always right up there in the standings anywhere I ride," he said.

Obviously, trainers are not afraid to turn to Sibille. One of his biggest boosters is Bob Namen who gave Ray his choice between Testimonial Type and Century Type in the $35,000 Colfax Maid Stakes earlier this meet. The choice involved picking the speed horse in Testimonial Type or the come from behind runner Century Type.

"I thought about that decision for two days before I finally said to myself what the heck, I've been having a lot of success rating horses recently so that made up my mind. A couple of years ago I probably would have picked the frontrunner. Century Type won and Testimonial Type was second," Sibille said.

The 24-year-old rider summed it up by saying: "Riding is like anything else professional. You have to learn it and sometimes it takes a while. I'm doing well but never stop learning. My goal is to continue both learning and doing as well as I have so far."

Bears' Reamon back home

"The only reason I stayed in the WFL was the money. I mean, man, they were talking six-figure money—guaranteed. But I would have given it all back to come to the Bears." — Tommy Reamon, Bears running back.

by BOB GALLAS

Tommy Reamon took a huge bite of a 3-inch thick ham sandwich as his mind wandered back to 1974, when he was playing for Jack Pardee, then coach of the World Football League Florida Blazers.

Those were the days when the Blazers went without paychecks, but still went to the league title game, thanks to the inspirational leadership of Pardee. Pardee left for the Bears head coaching job the next year, and Reamon has been fighting to rejoin his former coach ever since.

So badly did he want to rejoin Pardee, Reamon successfully persuaded the Kansas City Chiefs, who used him as a starter, to trade him to the Bears where his highest hope is to play behind Walter Payton.

"I'VE BEEN TRYING for two years to come here," he said, taking another huge bite of the sandwich. "I haven't enjoyed the game since I left Jack."

After the Blazers folded, Reamon played the 1975 season with the Jacksonville WFL entry for a huge personal services contract, which meant he was paid despite the fact that the league folded, as long as he didn't sign with any NFL club until the contract expired. But Reamon said he was ready to "give the money back," if he could come to the Bears, and Pardee.

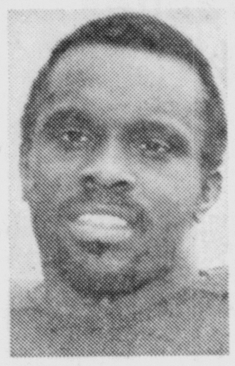
"Pittsburgh owned my NFL rights. I turned them down when they originally drafted me because I wanted to go somewhere where my skills would be utilized. It turned out to be a good decision."

Pittsburgh traded Reamon to the Chiefs after the WFL folded and Reamon started 10 games for Kansas City, last season, but still had his eye on Chicago.

"I WAS ALWAYS looking at other coaches for the qualities Jack had, but never found them. Football players are men, but we're like little babies, too. Jack knows just how to get the most out of his players."

Does that sound like a player trying to talk his way onto a team? Possibly. But what makes a man leave a team where he's starting to try and earn his way onto a team as a reserve?

"I know it's easy for me to say now that I would have given back the big money to come here. I realize too that they have great backs here. But I'm not competing against Payton, (Johnny) Musso or (Mike) Adamle. I just want to be the best football player Tommy Reamon can be."



Tommy Reamon

REAMON ADMITS that the large WFL contract, which he got after leading the league in rushing with 1,576 yards his rookie year, gives him the financial security to go where he wants. He's grateful for that, but still remembers the year of no paychecks when he was with Pardee's Blazers.

"I look back on those days fondly because I learned so much. I was young, playing, getting my ego stroked. But it hurt to see guys with two and three kids working for no paycheck."

A SMILE LIGHTS his face as he remembers the phone call from Pardee, telling him of the trade he'd been waiting for for the past two years.

"He (Pardee) said 'We finally got you back,' " said Reamon, who soon after got a call from Bears assistant coach Fred O'Connor, who was Pardee's backfield coach with the Blazers.

"He said, 'Welcome home.' "

Slander suit against Steelers' Noll to jury

SAN FRANCISCO — The $2 million slander suit brought by Oakland Raider defensive back George Atkinson against the Pittsburgh Steelers headed for the jury Thursday.

On the ninth trial day, Atkinson said that a retraction by the Steelers or their coach Chuck Noll of a statement suggesting he was part of a "criminal element" in the National Football League, would have obviated the suit.

Noll made his statement at a news conference on Sept. 13, 1976, the day after the Raiders and Steelers opened the season. In that game, won by the Raiders 31-28 in the last minutes, Atkinson delivered a "hit" on Pittsburgh wide receiver Lynn Swann that resulted in the concussion for the offensive player.

Atkinson later filed the slander suit against the Steelers and Noll and also another suit seeking $1 million in libel damages from the Oakland Tribune for comments by a columnist. That suit is still pending.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, calling himself a neutral witness, testified at the trial Wednesday and said he considers Atkinson an "outstanding" defensive back, but feels Atkinson's controversial hit of Swann was a "blatant" foul.

"I feel that the basic appeal of football is action, but controlled action," said Rozelle. "If the action is uncontrolled, it is a sad situation for everyone involved."

Last month the Steelers filed a $1 million countersuit against Atkinson alleging that he was part of a conspiracy to "disable and intimidate" Swann.

The Steelers Thursday withdrew the countersuit and U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti dismissed it "with prejudice," meaning it can never be reinstated.

Now Blount says he'll sue Noll

NEW ORLEANS — Pittsburgh Steelers cornerback Mel Blount said Wednesday he would file a $5 million lawsuit against Chuck Noll because, Blount said, Noll slandered him by calling him a part of professional sports' "criminal element."

Blount, who lives in south Louisiana during the offseason, said Noll's statements damaged his reputation. He said the suit would be filed in federal court.

Noll made the statement during testimony given last week in the Atkinson damage suit in California. During cross examination last week, Noll said he considered several other players part of a "criminal element" in pro sports, including Blount.

Trevino logs 8 birdies for golf lead

OAKVILLE, Ont. — Lee Trevino fired a 5-under-par 67 to take a one stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $225,000 Canadian Open.

Trevino logged four birdies and three bogeys on the front and four birdies on the back on the 7,129 Glen Abbey course to lead a jam of nine players tied for second spot at 68.

Norton, Young on King fight card

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Boxing promoter Don King announced Thursday he has lined up seven of the world's top 10 heavyweights for a nationally televised series of bouts Sept. 14 to be headed by separate fights by Ken Norton and Jimmy Young.

King said the three-hour prime-time show would be broadcast from Caesar's Palace.

Norton and Young, considered the two top challengers for Muhammad Ali's title, will both appear despite their previously announced Nov. 5 fight in Las Vegas.

Norton will go against 10th ranked Lorenzo Zanon, a little known fighter from Italy. Young, who has upset former champion George Foreman and Ron Lyle in recent bouts, will take on Florida journeyman Jody Ballarrd.

Lyle, the 36-year-old veteran from Denver, will face unbeaten youngster Stanley Ward of Sacramento, Calif.

Steinbrenner to Reggie's defense

NEW YORK — New York Yankee owner George M. Steinbrenner came to Reggie Jackson's defense Thursday, following accusations that the controversial outfielder had chased and stomped on a 13-year-old boy after Tuesday night's All-Star Game.

According to Jackson and others who witnessed the incident, Jackson was signing autographs and was able to put up with namecalling from some youths until one of the young men made a particularly vile remark about Jackson's mother. At that point, Jackson began to chase the youth who allegedly made the remark, Chris Howe.

Howe claims Jackson stomped on his wrist as he fell to the ground, but Jackson denies it.

"I just hope that this will not be the cause of players failing to stop and sign autographs in the future for the many fine baseball fans, young and old alike, who wait after games for players in ballparks everywhere," said Steinbrenner.

"I cannot say that I would blame Reggie if he never stopped to sign another autograph and it's too bad. But one rotten apple can ruin a whole barrel."

Royals, Twins earn wins, move up on White Sox

AL baseball

Both the second-place Kansas City Royals and third-place Minnesota Twins gained ground in the American League West on the first place White Sox Thursday.

The Royals, behind the four-hit pitching of former Arlington High School star Paul Splittorff, topped the Detroit Tigers 8-1 to pull within two games of the Sox. The Twins topped California 3-2.

In other A.L. action, Cleveland split a day-night doubleheader with Boston, dropping the afternoon contest 11-4, then coming back to win the nightcap 8-2. New York also split a twinbill with Milwaukee, winning the opener 7-0 then dropping the second game, 5-4.

In Detroit, Al Cowens drove in five runs to reach a new personal career high of 63 in leading the torrid Royals to their seventh straight victory.

Cowens, whose previous best for RBI in a season was 59 last year, cracked his 15th home run of the season after Hal McRae doubled home Frank White in the third inning. Cowans' next home run will give him twice as many as he accumulated in his first three major league seasons combined.

Splittorff raised his record to 8-5 with a four-hitter and the run he allowed in the third, which scored on a single by Tito Fuentes, was unearned as the result of an error by Cowens.

DAVE GOLTZ gave up two runs in the first inning and then hurled shutout ball the rest of the way to lift the Twins to a win over Nolan Ryan and the Angels.

Lyman Bostock slugged a two-run triple in the first and scored on Larry Hisle's bunt single to complete all the Twins' scoring.

Bobby Bonds hit his 19th home run in the first off Goltz. Bonds drove in Rance Mulliniks, who had reached safely on an error.

Goltz, who pitched his 10th complete game, held the Angels to six hits. He walked only one and struck out six, upping his record to 11-6. Rod Carew went 0-for-2 and his batting average dropped to .391. Ryan, 13-9, gave up only four hits but walked seven while posting only four strikeouts to raise his season total to 238.

AT YANKEE STADIUM, Dick Davis delivered a two-out single in the 10th inning to score Cecil Cooper and give the Brewers a 5-4 come-from-behind victory over New York in the second game after the Yankees won the opener 7-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

Hunter, 6-4, struck out three and walked two in pitching his first shutout of the year.

IN BOSTON, Andre Thornton whacked a two-run homer while John Lowenstein and Bruce Bochte added solo drives Thursday night to give the Indians an 8-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox and a split of their day-night doubleheader.

Butch Hobson hit a three-run homer in a nine-run seventh inning and drove in four runs in the day game to pace Boston to an 11-4 victory.

Pirates, Cards pound West foes

NL baseball

Jerry Reuss pitched a six-hitter and Al Oliver hit his 11th homer and drove in two runs Thursday night leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

It was Reuss' fifth victory against 10 losses while Fred Norman was the loser.

Oliver homered leading off the fourth and the Pirates added three runs in the fifth before the game was delayed 31 minutes by rain. Frank Taveras' triple ignited the rally which featured run-scoring singles by Dave Parker and Bill Robinson and Oliver's sacrifice fly.

TAVERAS' SECOND triple keyed a two-run sixth inning which included a lead off double by Omar Moreno and Phil Garner's sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati's runs came on Pete Rose's fifth homer and a run-scoring double by Dave Concepcion in the ninth inning.

In St. Louis Bob Forsch pitched a three-hitter for his 12th win of the season and Keith Hernandez stroked a solo homer Thursday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-0 win over the Astros.

Forsch, who has four losses, struck out two and walked five.

Hernandez, who hadn't hit a homer in a month, lined a two-out homer over the right field wall in the second off J. R. Richard, who had gone 24 innings without giving up a run. Richard dropped to 9-7 with the loss.

THE CARDS made it 2-0 in the fourth when Garry Templeton led off with a single, stole second, went to third on a grounder and scored on an infield out by Ted Simmons.

St. Louis added two more runs in the sixth. Jerry Mumphrey hit a one-out single, stole second and scored on Templeton's triple. Templeton, who leads the league with nine triples, came home when Simmons hit his second run-scoring infield out of the game.

Kings hockey meet

The Schaumburg Hockey League will present the Kings 1977-78 amateur hockey program at a general meeting today at 8 p.m. in the meeting rooms of the Lincoln Federal Saving and Loan Assn., 1400 Gannon Dr., Hoffman Estates. The meeting is open to the public.

The Schaumburg Hockey League is beginning its eighth season of providing programs for youngsters. Special programs are offered for the 4-6-year-old beginners, as well as for accomplished senior hockey players. Each of the programs will be described at tonight's meeting.

AL sore losers, he says

Dear Editor:

As long as the National League continues to dominate the All-Star Game, as they once again did on Tuesday night, Amiercan League players and fans will continue to holler bloody murder and make excuses for the AL's poor showing.

For George Scott to blame the loss on the fans' voting is totally ridiculous since the same fans chose both teams. For every AL player who was unfairly left off of the starting lineup, there was at least one NL player who suffered the same fate. After all, Ted Simmons should have been the starting catcher and who's to say that Larry Bowa shouldn't have started at shortstop?

A perfect example of this is the case of the Cubs' Manny Trillo, who, had the balloting reflected the year he had been having, would have started at second instead of perennial All-Star Joe Morgan. Instead, Morgan played and homered to lead off the game.

If AL players and fans bemoan the fact that people like Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Jackson are starting instead of Larry Hisle and Ken Singleton, then that's too bad. What's wrong with Yastrzemski and Jackson? They are proven all-stars with strong All-Star Game credentials. Like Morgan, they are just as capable of able performances — if not more capable — than Hisle and the others.

The whole incident just goes to prove that what they say about the AL not taking the All-Star Game as seriously as the NL is a bunch of hogwash. The AL is beginning to let their abysmal performance get under their skin. All they can do is come up with weak excuses, like their fans have been known to do. The ultimate excuse — blaming those same fans — is pretty pathetic.

Tourney ace earns $100

Each of the 160 golfers will have the chance of pocketing $100 for a hole-in-one at the Paddock tournament Sunday, Aug. 14, at Buffalo Grove golf club. The prize has been won just once during the first 27 years of the event.

Mike Spinello representing Graft Builder's team in Old Orchard Scratch league in the 1970 tournament at Thunderbird golf club carded the ace on the par 3, 17th hole.

Whether or not one of the expected 160 golfers this time will be able to pocket the $100 prize remains to be seen, though it is certain the 12 individual trophies, the four golf passes and the two dozen golf balls for low net and low gross will definitely be taken by day's end.

First place teams of the twilight leagues as of July 23 are eligible for the big event with deadline for entries Saturday, July 30.

Registration for softball tourney

Windy City softball officials have announced that registration for the July 9 II tournament is going very quickly. There is still room for teams to sign up and participate in the July 30 and 31 Winston Tourney. Deadline for entries is July 24.

Class A Tourneys have proven to be the strong point of the Winston Circuit season. Forty-five teams took part in the June Classic and 36 more are playing in this weekends' July A.

Haughton still chasing elusive Roosevelt International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Veteran harness racing driver Billy Haughton did not hesitate when asked which major standard-bred races he had not yet won. "The Kentucky Futurity," he said promptly. "And the Roosevelt International."

On Saturday night, Haughton, 53, will make his sixth appearance in the $200,000 mile-and-a-quarter International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway, in Westbury, N.Y. The Hall of Famer, who has won more than $24 million in purses, was third with Trader Horn in the first International in 1959; sixth with Our Own in 1965; sixth with Carlisle in 1968; second with Spartan Hanover in 1973 and sixth with Savior in 1976.

This year, however, Haughton will be driving the morning line favorite in the race, Keystone Pioneer, who was voted Aged Trotter of the Year in 1976. On the other hand, Haughton isn't exactly optimistic about his chances this year.

FOR THE 13th time in 14 starts, the five-year-old mare, listed at 3-1, has drawn an outside post position; on Saturday, she will be leaving from post position No. 8, outside the other American entrant in the race, Kash Minbar, who drew post No. 7.

"Ain't that the luck," said Haughton after the draw was made at the United Nations Tuesday. "We're sure giving the other guys a break, especially on a half-mile track like Roosevelt."

"The other guys" include, from the rail out, Tarok (Denmark) 10-1; Fakir du Vivier (France) 10-1; Micko Tilly (Sweden) 12-1; Belling II (France) 4-1; Petite Evander (New Zealand) 10-2; Delfo (Italy) 10-1, and Dapper Dillon (Canada) 10-1, who will be leaving from the second tier in post position No. 9.

Bellino II, who will be driven by Jean-Rene Gougeon, and Delfo, driven by Sergio Brighenti, are the only two entrants with International experience. Bellino II, the gigantic 10-year old stallion, listed as the 4-1 choice with Kash Minbar, finished second in the race in 1975 and 1976. His career earnings now stand at $1,871,138. Delfo, the 1975 Italian champion, finished seventh in the 1976 International.

HAUGHTON EXPECTS his main competition to come from Bellino II and the other French entrant, Fakir du Vivier, who will be driven by Pierre-Desire Allaire. Allaire won the International last year with the long-shot Equileo, who recently developed a cough in France and was replaced in the International by Fakir.

The French concede, however, that Keystone Pioneer is the horse to beat in the race, despite her having lost to Kash Minbar by two lengths in last week's $50,000 American Trotting Championship. The mare recently returned from a trip to Europe in which she won two out of three starts and set a European record for the mile-and-a-quarter with a 2:29.4 mark in Denmark.

"To look at her you wouldn't think she is the great champion she is," said Haughton. "I just wish we had a better spot to prove it Saturday."

Playing ball—and enjoying it, too

Byline report

Art Mugalian

Sometimes you meet the strangest people in the most unlikely places.

Last weekend I ran into a baseball player at Woodfield. Not unusual, you say. Okay, it's not. Even though most of the time you find them at the ball park, it's certainly not against the rules for a ballplayer to go shopping.

BUT THIS ballplayer was someone special. Not a Cub or White Sox, not special in that way. He wasn't an old-timer, either, one of those stars from a bygone era.

He was special though.

He was special because he is one of the surviving breed of players who play baseball for the love of the game. He plays it and he coaches it and he gets inordinate satisfaction from merely being on the field.

Now to understand exactly what that means, you have to consider what has happened to baseball over the past, let us say, 25 years. You have to understand what has happened to America.

Baseball, in the old days, was played in every village and hamlet in the United States. Every town had a team, or several teams, and leagues sprang up everywhere. We're not just talking about professional baseball. Amateur and semi-pro baseball flourished for decades in this country.

IT WAS THE dream of every kid in America to play major league baseball, and for 400 kids at any one time that dream was a reality.

For those who couldn't live the dream — and for those who watched the dream pass by — there was still a chance to play baseball at some level.

Playing baseball in the old days was not a lucrative business. Nowhere, including the majors, was the pay what you would call princely. This is not to suggest that major league ballplayers kept at it for a sheer love of the game. Idealism has its limits.

BUT, IN ORDER to keep plugging away in the bushes, even after a big-league chance had come and gone, it required some kind of devotion and dedication to baseball. Sometimes it meant that a man would sacrifice a bigger paycheck for the simple pleasure that playing baseball everyday would bring.

Today, that kind of attitude is regarded as quixotic at best, lunatic at worst. A man like Jim Bouton wants to play baseball because he loves to play baseball and people think that he is crazy and egotistical or he must be writing another book.

Finding a place to play baseball is no longer so easy anymore. Teams and leagues don't dot the landscape like they did 50 years ago, 30 years ago. But there are teams to be found. You can play if you want to. If you love the game, you can play it.

But you almost have to love it to play it. No longer are the dreams nurtured in semi-pro ball. If you haven't made it by then, you can forget it. All the dreams are on the downside.

MONEY IS THE big thing now. Talent can command a fortune. Being on the field isn't so important as it once was. Playing the game for fun and playing it for profit are very often two different things.

So when you find someone, in this day and age, who continues to play baseball once every two weeks by getting in his car and driving 300 miles roundtrip, it is strange in a way. You have found a living dinosaur, a throwback to the old days, a link to the past.

This is not major league baseball, not by a longshot. This is sandlot ball and there is no money and no fame. This is, rather, self-realization.

"I'm a has-been," said the baseball player, leaning his weight on a stack of merchandise at Woodfield. "Some guys are 38-years-old and they're over the hill but they're still hanging on. I'm 29 and I'm still in my prime. I had a shot once but I couldn't make the majors because I'm too small."

WHO HE IS doesn't matter. His identity isn't important. Just say he isn't Mike Schmidt or Catfish Hunter.

"I love to play baseball," he said. "Kids today would rather do something else, I guess. They'd rather go fishing."

She judges hits or errors

by K. MACK SISK

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas League's only female scorekeeper takes no guff from burly baseball players who might want to challenge her judgment.

Lt. Kathy Dodson, 23, an Air Force officer, presides with authority as official scorekeeper for the San Antonio Dodgers and says so far none of the players in the male-dominated sport have threatened her with bodily harm.

The red-haired scorekeeper says most of the players "are real nice about it" when they run over to the table where she holds court to protest a call.

HER RULING ON whether to score a close play as an error against a fielder or a hit for a batter is regarded as crucial to the careers of the players. Inevitably someone gets upset — the fielder who gets an error, the batter who loses a hit or the pitcher who gives up a hit because of Dodson's decision.

"It's not just hits and errors that are controversial," she said. It's passed balls and wild pitches. Of course the catchers want me to call it a wild pitch, whereas the pitchers want me to call it a passed ball."

Dodson, one of the few women scorekeepers in professional baseball, knows the importance of individual statistics to the minor league players who are striving to excel and perhaps move into the major leagues. She has been involved in baseball since her childhood in Topeka, Kan.

"Coming from a family of three brothers and a father that have played baseball and being around baseball all my life, I tend to really emphathize with the baseball players themselves, so I try even harder to be fair," she said.

"IN A REAL close call, somebody's going to gripe. That's all there is to it. I don't ever tell them to get lost. They come over and discuss it. I'll tell them I'll consider it or I'll look into it, or I'll just say, 'Yea, yea, I don't want to hear it.'

"If it's really controversial, I'll take a consensus of the sportswriters that are keeping score."

Her father, Dr. Lee Dodson, dean of students at Washburn University in Topeka, was once a minor league player and all three Dodson brothers managed baseball teams in Kansas while Miss Dodson sat behind them keeping score. She used to go to the Kansas City Royals games to practice her scorekeeping.

Kathy Dodson showed up at the San Antonio team's office one day and Wally Moon Sr., a former major league player and owner of the Dodgers who was looking for a full-time scorekeeper, hired her on the spot.

MOON SAID SOME people at first felt Dodson wouldn't know enough about baseball to handle the job.

"I think it started out that way, but after two weeks of watching her score, everyone accepted it," Moon said. "She takes her work seriously and does a fine job."

MERCURY MONARCH is noted for its precise handling. With a peppy optional 302 cubic inch V-8 engine, the Monarch out-performs most compact cars in its line.

Mercury Monarch gets high grades in handling

by DOYLE K. GETTER

Despite its compact size, only 197.7 inches in overall length the Mercury Monarch four-door sedan is a roomy and comfortable car for four adults. With the optional 302 cubic inch V-8 engine, it is a snappy performer, as well.

The ride is semi-soft and well damped. Most of the little bounces on road imperfections that you usually expect in small cars are absorbed by the suspension and shocks.

Its precise handling is where the Monarch shines. With power steering, it maneuvers easily yet lets enough of the feel of the road to come through to the driver to give him confidence that the car is going exactly where he steers it.

LANE CHANGES in fast highway traffic and tight parking maneuvers in crowded shopping center lots are both accomplished with much more ease than with longer cars.

The brakes, power assisted with front discs on the test car, would stop the car in just over twice its length from 30 miles an hour and in less than 10 times its length from 55 miles an hour.

The Monarch's fresh air ventilating system is one of the best you will find in any car. This is a stand-out feature in nearly all Ford Motor Co. cars. When this was combined in the test car with an optional automatic temperature controlled air conditioning and heating system, interior temperatures under all climate conditions are comfortable and restful.

FRONT LEGROOM in the Monarch is 41 inches; rear seat legroom is 36 inches. Hip and shoulder room also is generous. The Monarch is 74 inches wide, a little wider than most compacts.

Mercury seems to have obtained those generous proportions at the expense of trunk volume, which is only 14.6 cubic feet.

The standard engine for the Monarch is a 200 cubic inch six, with a 250 cubic inch six and the 302 V-8 offered as options. A four-speed manual overdrive transmission is standard.

Driving with the optional automatic transmission and 302 V-8, I averaged 17.7 miles per gallon in city and suburban driving and 21 miles per gallon on the highway at 55 miles an hour.

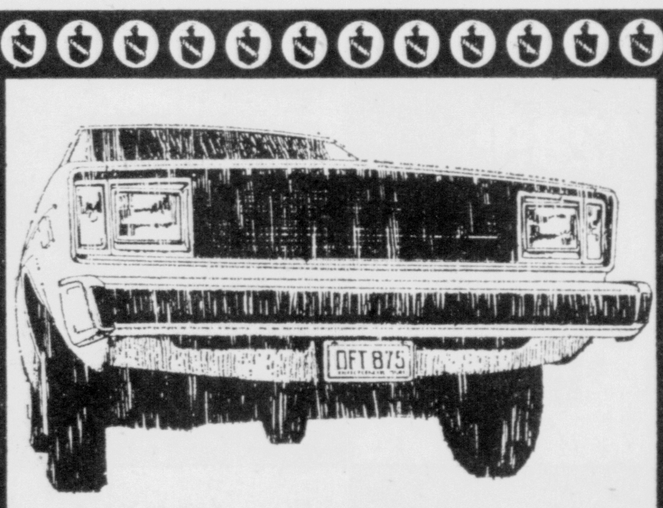
THOSE ARE CLOSE to EPA estimates of 16 miles per gallon in strictly city driving and 22 miles per gallon on the highway. Better mileage could be expected with the manual transmission in overdrive.

The 302 engine was peppy on acceleration, more than one could expect from either of the six cylinder engines. I could accelerate from zero to 50 miles an hour in 8.3 seconds and from 30 to 50 in 4.7 seconds.

The base price of the test car was $4,154. Options boosted the list price to $6,105.

Final grid sign-up

The Elk Grove Village Athletic Assn. will hold its final football registration Saturday, July 23, for boys ages 8-14 not in high school. There will be two locations for the sign-up; one at the Elk Grove Bowl and the other at the Eagle Food store at Devon and Route 53. Both locations will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For further information call Grant Galloway at 593-8573.



YOUR NEW CAR NEEDS RUSTPROOFING.

BUT BEFORE YOU GET IT, BE SURE YOU GET REAL RUSTPROOFING. NOT A COVER-UP COATING.

There isn't one 1977 model that doesn't need additional rustproofing protection when it leaves the showroom floor. The only question is who can deliver the real rustproofing protection needed to retain its appearance and value. One sure answer is your Ziebart Dealer. He's got the expertise, the patented spray tools and the exclusive Ziebart process to assure you the protection your new car needs. With the cost of a 1977 car, can you afford anything less than real Ziebart protection?

Carburetor could cause rough ride

Doyle K. Getter

Your auto and you

Auto Column: I recently bought a used 1975 Maverick with 24,000 miles on it. I have been able to get only 16-17 miles per gallon on the highway and 12-13 mpg in the city with air conditioning off. In addition it idles roughly and does not seem to have the acceleration or power one might expect. At times it starts very hard and has a tendency to quit once started. Also, the compressor for the exhaust manifold emissions system is making a fluttering noise.

CONLEY STUTZ, Peoria, Ill.

Mr. Stutz: That flutter is normal. You did not tell me what engine you have so I don't know if your gas mileage is reasonable or not. Your other complaints all point to a dirty and badly adjusted carburetor. Take it to a Ford shop and have it cleaned and readjusted according to Ford shop manual specs, using Ford's propane idle adjuster.

Auto Column: I have a six cylinder 1972 Pontiac Ventura. When I shut off the engine, it keeps running for a short time and gives off a strong odor of exhaust. What can I do to overcome this?

MR. J. A. G., Springfield, Mass.

Mr. J. A. G.: That sounds like you need a good tuneup but, more particularly, I believe your hot idle speed is set too high. Have all of your carburetor adjustments set to the specs on the emission control label on the panel just inside the hood of the car.

Auto Column: My six cylinder Pontiac Sunbird with automatic transmission is rated at 30 miles per gallon but I have never got more than 23 and last winter it went down to 16-17 miles per gallon. I drive from Silver Creek to downtown Buffalo to work and this I consider "distance" driving, not "city" driving. I like to drive a consistent speed of at least 55 wherever I can. Do you have any good suggestions for my garage mechanic to check out?

MRS. RUTH E. LANE, Silver Creek, N.Y.

Mrs. Lane: Didn't everyone's gas mileage suffer severely during last winter in the Buffalo area? When you say you like to drive "at least 55" I get the impression that you frequently drive faster, at least as fast as freeway traffic is going, and that often is 60 or more miles an hour. I believe your driving habits have a lot to do with your gas mileage. If you don't believe that, then ask your Pontiac dealer to put one of those tenth-of-a-gallon bottle testers on your car and that will tell you exactly what your car is capable of.

Auto Column: I have to add a quart of oil every 600 miles to my 1975 Cordoba. The Chrysler place tells me that is normal but I can't believe it. Can you please help me.

JOE SWIATEK, Oviedo, Fla.

Mr. Swiatek: You might have your valve seals inspected to see that they are fitting properly but the unfortunate fact probably is that your oil consumption is normal for your car. Because of the fine tolerances they must work with and the mass production techniques employed, automotive engineers generally consider the use of a quart of oil every 500 miles is within "normal" but they will tell you quite frankly they are not proud of it. Most cars do much better but there are always a few at the low end — and you may have one of those.

Auto Column: I have a '73 Caprice with the two-barrel 400 cubic inch V-8. After it has set overnight and I start out in the morning, the engine stumbles or hesitates when I press on the accelerator. It takes 10 or 15 minutes of driving before it acts normally.

MR. P. B., Kenosha, Wis.

Mr. P. B.: Your carburetor must be set very lean. Have a mechanic enrich the mixture very slightly and try it out and do it that way, by small degrees, until you have the correct mixture for normal cold engine driving. Perhaps your cold choke isn't working at all. It should be checked.

Two racquetball tourneys at Arlington Court House

The Court House racquetball clubs in Arlington Heights has scheduled two men's racquetball tournaments for July 30-31.

The seniors tournament is for men aged 35 through 44, the masters for men 45 years and older. Both competitions will be singles and doubles. There will be winner-consolation rounds, thus guaranteeing all participants a minimum of two matches.

Court fees for the tournaments are $3 a person a match for singles and $3 a team a match for doubles. A minimum of eight participants is required to hold a division. Matches will begin at 11 a.m.

Both the seniors and the masters will compete on the same skill levels — Open/Singles and C/Singles as well as Open/Doubles and C/Doubles.

The entry fee for singles or doubles will be $4 a participant. There will be a $5 entry fee for those wishing to enter both the doubles and the singles competitions. The tournaments will not be seeded.

Entry form and fee must be received by the Court House clubs in Arlington Heights and/or Mid-Town Chicago no later than 6 p.m. July 25. Pairings will be posted within 24 hours.

Winners and runner-ups in all divisions will receive Court House gift certificates in addition to the tournament T-shirt given each entrant.

Northwest suburban residents should contact Phil Klintworth, Arlington Heights Court House, 106 E. College Dr., telephone: 398-4656.

Schaumburg Court House hosts handball tournament

The Schaumburg Court House is one of six racquetball clubs hosting the first Chicagoland handball tournament Aug. 6-7.

There will be three divisions: under 35, seniors (35 through 44), and masters (45 and over) — as well as two skill levels — C and Open. All three tourneys will be both singles and doubles competitions.

The events have been structured so that there will be winner-consolation tournaments in each division and at each skill level, thus guaranteeing all participants at least two matches.

Entry fees will be $4 per participant for singles or doubles, $5 a player for singles and doubles, and court fees will be $3 a person a match for singles and $3 a team a match for doubles. A minimum of eight contestants is required to hold a division. Matches will begin at 11 a.m. and all entrants will receive a tourney T-shirt.

None of the tournaments will be seeded. All entries must be received by 6 p.m. Aug. 1. Pairings will be posted within 24 hours.

For further information participants should contact: Bonnie Korytowski, Schaumburg Court House, 1450 Payne Rd., Schaumburg, Ill. at 882-4636.

Economy grows 6.4% in second quarter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's economy was "strong and well-balanced" during the second quarter, growing at a 6.4 per cent annual rate, the U.S. Commerce Dept. said Thursday.

In a separate report, the Labor Dept. said the prices consumers pay at the grocery store and other retail outlets rose a "moderate" 0.6 per cent, matching the lowest increases of the year in May and March.

Meanwhile, consumer prices rose 0.4 per cent during June in the Chicago metropolitan area, the Illinois Dept. of Labor reports. The increase is included in the 6.2 per cent price boost recorded for the past year.

HALF THE CHICAGO area consumer price increase during June was the result of food price hikes. Health and recreation costs also increased during the month. Decreased prices were reported for cereals and bakery products, poultry, fish and housing costs.

The two government economic reports confirmed Carter administration projections that the economic growth rate was healthy during the first half of 1977 and inflation has slowed, after increasing at a 10 per cent annual rate during the first three months of 1977.

"Economic growth in the second quarter was strong and well-balanced," said Courtenay Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Dept. "Unlike the first quarter, when the Gross National Product rise was heavily concentrated in motor vehicle purchases and business inventories, second quarter growth was spread among almost all major GNP components."

The Commerce Dept. also revised upward its GNP yardstick for the first three months of 1977 to a level considerably above earlier estimates.

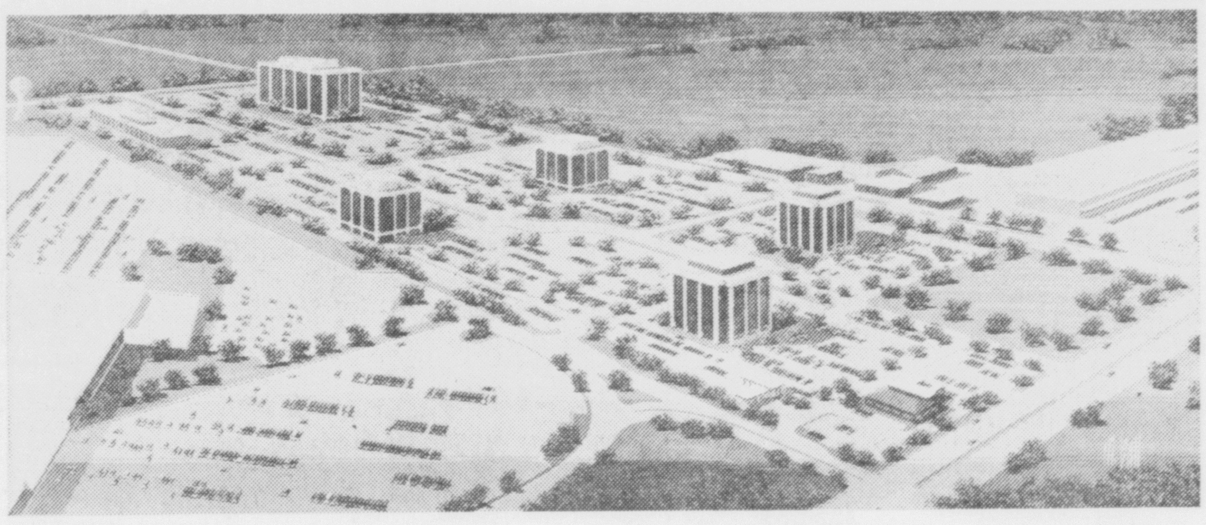
Despite cold weather that crippled commerce in many sections of the country in January and early February, real GNP — which is adjusted for inflation — rose 7.5 per cent during the first quarter instead of the previously estimated 6.9 per cent.

THE DEPARTMENT said the GNP stood at $1.33 trillion, compared to $1.31 trillion in the first quarter.

Mrs. Slater said residential construction showed a particularly strong increase in the second quarter and government purchases showed "significant gains" for the first time since mid-1975.

Personal income also was stronger due to employment gains and a reduction in tax withholding rates, she said.

Although the 6.4 per cent growth was considered healthy, it fell below projections by administration economic officials who forecast an increase in the range of 7 per cent.



PLANS FOR THREE new office buildings in addition to three existing office buildings in the Woodfield Plaza Office Park, Schaumburg, were announced Thursday by J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc., of Des Plaines. Construction will begin this fall on the fourth office building followed by 1978 groundbreaking on the fifth and sixth facilities. The Woodfield Plaza Office Park is located at Golf and Meacham roads. The park is expected to include nearly one million square feet of office space valued at approximately $48 million.

Coffee price dips on world market

A sharp decline in green coffee prices on the London and New York futures markets Thursday signaled relief for U.S. coffee drinkers who can expect to pay less for their morning cup in the months ahead. Consumer resistance to record high retail prices has taken its toll on world coffee markets, a New York dealer said, and shelf prices should fall after roasters replace current inventories with cheaper beans. "The bottom seems to have fallen out of the market," said a London coffee dealer, after the July contract for future delivery plunged by roughly $510 to close at $3,655 a ton on the London terminal market. Coffee hit more than $6,800 a ton in mid-April. On the New York coffee and sugar exchange, the July contract dropped 21 cents to $2.14 a pound. Two months ago the July contract was selling for almost $3.40 a pound.

Retail coffee sales in the United States have dropped more than 20 per cent since ground coffee broke through the $4-a-pound barrier in mid-April. Roasters then cut back on buying green coffee, and contracts in both London and New York began to erode steadily in price.

The Federal Trade Commission Thursday accused Kroger, the nation's third largest supermarket chain, of deceiving consumers with an advertising campaign comparing Kroger's prices with its competitors'. The company said it disagreed strongly with the attack on its "price patrol" campaign. It said the FTC action threatened to stifle the use of price comparison in advertising. The campaign involved the weekly publication of Kroger prices compared with those of competitors for about 150 products. The FTC said the technique was deceptive and misleading advertising because the survey was not "methodologically sound."

Ozark tries to prevent strike

Representatives of Ozark Air Lines and the Mechanics' Union Thursday negotiated a new contract in efforts to head off a strike. The last contract expired Oct. 1. Members of Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Assn. Local 24 were voting on whether to authorize a strike July 30, the end of a 30-day cooling off period. Paul Rogers, Ozark vice president for marketing, said a strike would shut down operations. Ozark serves 57 cities in 16 states, mostly in the Midwest, and in a majority of the cities, provides the only commercial air service. The last strike by mechanics halted Ozark's operations for 11 weeks in 1973.

'No-fault insurance needs test'

No-fault auto insurance needs more testing and only continued state-experimentation can provide it, the president of the nation's largest insurance trade association told a Senate committee this week. Testifying before the Senate Commerce Committee on S. 1381, the federal no-fault standards bill, Arthur C. Mertz said actual experience in the 24 states that have adopted various forms of no-fault had raised many questions about the operation of those laws. Mertz is president of the Des Plaines-based National Assn. of Independent Insurers, whose 405 member companies write more than 40 per cent of the auto insurance in the U.S.

Amex won't build in Connecticut

The American Stock Exchange has eliminated Connecticut from consideration as a site for relocation, chairman Paul Kolton said Thursday. This leaves the exchange with two proposals, one from New York City offering a choice of several sites in lower Manhattan, and one from the state of New Jersey, which would create a public authority to build a headquarters for the Amex in Jersey City. Kolton said distance from New York and relatively high moving costs dictated the decision by the Amex board of governors to drop the Connecticut proposal.

Trading heavy, Dow gains 1.30

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chips were winners Thursday while the rest of the stock market struggled for direction amid favorable earnings reports and some disappointing economic news. Trading was heavy.

Early selling was triggered by news June's Consumer Price Index rose a higher-than-expected 7.2 per cent annual rate. The second-quarter CPI rose at an 8.1 per cent rate, down from the 10 per cent in the first. Both were ahead of the 4.2 per cent rate in 1976's fourth quarter.

Some investors were disappointed the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported the second-quarter Gross National Product rose 6.4 per cent, down from the revised 7.5 per cent growth registered in the first quarter. A number of economists had predicted a 7 per cent second-quarer increase.

Nevertheless, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, down 3 points in the early afternoon because of profit taking, rallied to gain 1.30 points to 921.78. The index has gained 18.76 points in five sessions, including 1.21 Wednesday.

However, the New York Stock Exchange Common Stock Index lost 0.09 to 55.64 and the average price of a share decreased by 5 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.14 to 101.59.

Some tips on buying your summer vacation cottage

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — Whether you head for the lake, the ocean or the mountains for your summer vacation, you'll find land and cottages for sale. And you may consider (as you probably have in summers past) whether to buy a place for enjoyment and investment.

Vacation homes have paid off for many investors. During the season they rent out the house (or condominium) and use the income to help pay the mortgage, insurance, taxes and upkeep. If you attract enough renters the house will practically pay for itself, requiring you to come up with perhaps only a small amount of money out-of-pocket each year. Eventually, you can sell the cottage for a nice capital gain.

Vacation land is a little riskier. You get no rental income from the property while you're holding it for appreciation, so all its costs come right out of your regular earnings. And unless the land is well-chosen, it may not be as easy to resell as you had hoped. Nevertheless, many investors have made a good profit buying and selling land.

LIKE ANY other investment, vacation properties are far from a sure thing. Many people wind up with far fewer rentals than they had expected, or land that goes for years without buyers.

If you're toying with the idea of buying a summer (or ski season) property, how do you stack the investment odds in your favor? Here are some suggesstions, based on my own experience (my husband and I have built, rented and sold two cottages on the outer banks of North Carolina, and are starting on our third), the experience of other property owners, and talks with real estate brokers in vacation areas:

• Buy in a place that attracts a large number of visitors, with more coming every year. Spots off the beaten path may be perfect for you and your family, but do less rental business.

• The most rentals, and largest capital gains, go to properties fronting an ocean or lake. Property further back costs less to buy, but will also return less of a profit. In ski areas, look for proximity to the ski lift and a good view of the mountains.

• Buy in areas where property is relatively scarce, or in communities that have a unique feature (like a lake or excellent scenery) not shared by similar communities. If you buy land in a big vacation subdivision, where the builder has many lots of his own to sell, he'll corral most of the buyers for himself. Unless your lot is in a particularly good location (like on a lake), it may be hard to resell.

• Nicely furnished and kept-up cottages do more business than places that are spartan and run down. Many investors skimp on furniture on the assumption that "the renters will ruin it," but that has not been our experience.

• During the height of the season, all the cottages may be filled. But off-season business goes almost exclusively to the nicer places — and you generally need off-season rentals if the cottage is to pay for itself.

• If you can't afford the place unless it brings in a good rental income, take great care with your financial projections. Ask the present owner to show you his books. If you plan to build, ask other cottage owners in the area how much rental income they receive, and whether their income is growing or holding fast.

• If you can't be on hand to watch the building of your cottage, you might be wiser to get a pre-fab than have a local carpenter build from an architect's plan. With pre-fab, there's less room for error.

• Put the property in the hands of a local rental agent. You pay a commission of perhaps 15 to 25 per cent of rentals, but the agent can generally get you much more business than you could yourself. Also, you need someone on site to handle problems (like plumbing breakdowns) and see that the cottage is cleaned after each renter leaves.

Economy grows 6.4% in second quarter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's economy was "strong and well-balanced" during the second quarter, growing at a 6.4 per cent annual rate, the U.S. Commerce Dept. said Thursday.

In a separate report, the Labor Dept. said the prices consumers pay at the grocery store and other retail outlets rose a "moderate" 0.6 per cent, matching the lowest increases of the year in May and March.

Meanwhile, consumer prices rose 0.4 per cent during June in the Chicago metropolitan area, the Illinois Dept. of Labor reports. The increase is included in the 6.2 per cent price boost recorded for the past year.

HALF THE CHICAGO area consumer price increase during June was the result of food price hikes. Health and recreation costs also increased during the month. Decreased prices were reported for cereals and bakery products, poultry, fish and housing costs.

The two government economic reports confirmed Carter administration projections that the economic growth rate was healthy during the first half of 1977 and inflation has slowed, after increasing at a 10 per cent annual rate during the first three months of 1977.

"Economic growth in the second quarter was strong and well-balanced," said Courtenay Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Dept. "Unlike the first quarter, when the Gross National Product rise was heavily concentrated in motor vehicle purchases and business inventories, second quarter growth was spread among almost all major GNP components."

The Commerce Dept. also revised upward its GNP yardstick for the first three months of 1977 to a level considerably above earlier estimates.

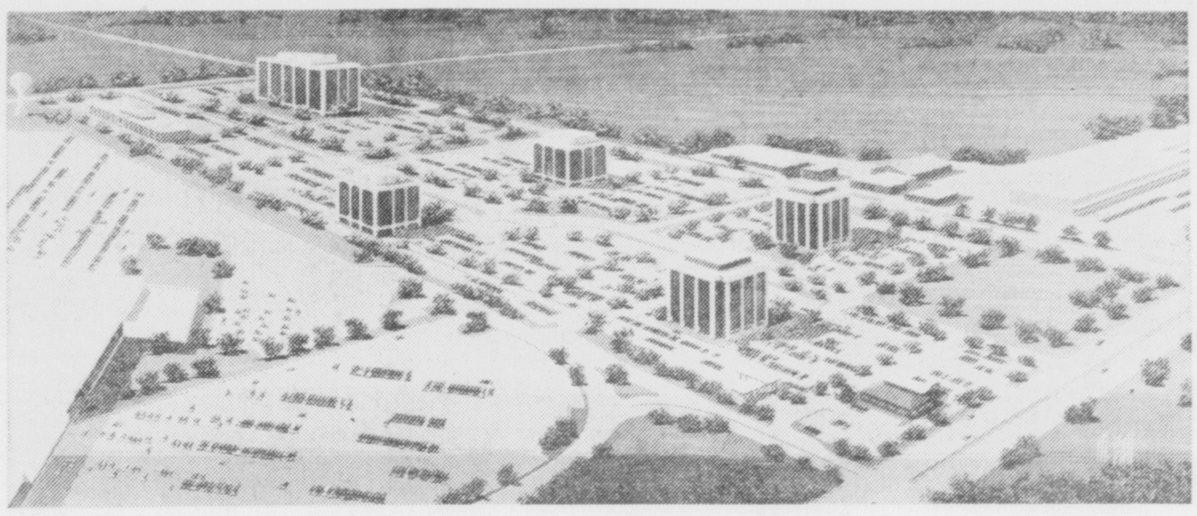
Despite cold weather that crippled commerce in many sections of the country in January and early February, real GNP — which is adjusted for inflation — rose 7.5 per cent during the first quarter instead of the previously estimated 6.9 per cent.

THE DEPARTMENT said the GNP stood at $1.33 trillion, compared to $1.31 trillion in the first quarter.

Mrs. Slater said residential construction showed a particularly strong increase in the second quarter and government purchases showed "significant gains" for the first time since mid-1975.

Personal income also was stronger due to employment gains and a reduction in tax withholding rates, she said.

Although the 6.4 per cent growth was considered healthy, it fell below projections by administration economic officials who forecast an increase in the range of 7 per cent.



PLANS FOR THREE new office buildings in addition to three existing office buildings in the Woodfield Plaza Office Park, Schaumburg, were announced Thursday by J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc., of Des Plaines. Construction will begin this fall on the fourth office building followed by 1978 groundbreaking on the fifth and sixth facilities. The Woodfield Plaza Office Park is located at Golf and Meacham roads. The park is expected to include nearly one million square feet of office space valued at approximately $48 million.

A sharp decline in green coffee prices on the London and New York futures markets Thursday signaled relief for U.S. coffee drinkers who can expect to pay less for their morning cup in the months ahead. Consumer resistance to record high retail prices has taken its toll on world coffee markets, a New York dealer said, and shelf prices should fall after roasters replace current inventories with cheaper beans. "The bottom seems to have fallen out of the market," said a London coffee dealer, after the July contract for future delivery plunged by roughly $510 to close at $3,655 a ton on the London terminal market. Coffee hit more than $6,800 a ton in mid-April. On the New York coffee and sugar exchange, the July contract dropped 21 cents to $2.14 a pound. Two months ago the July contract was selling for almost $3.40 a pound.

Retail coffee sales in the United States have dropped more than 20 per cent since ground coffee broke through the $4-a-pound barrier in mid-April. Roasters then cut back on buying green coffee, and contracts in both London and New York began to erode steadily in price.

Kroger accused of deceptive ads

The Federal Trade Commission Thursday accused Kroger, the nation's third largest supermarket chain, of deceiving consumers with an advertising campaign comparing Kroger's prices with its competitors'. The company said it disagreed strongly with the attack on its "price patrol" campaign. It said the FTC action threatened to stifle the use of price comparison in advertising. The campaign involved the weekly publication of Kroger prices compared with those of competitors for about 150 products. The FTC said the technique was deceptive and misleading advertising because the survey was not "methodologically sound."

Ozark tries to prevent strike

Representatives of Ozark Air Lines and the Mechanics' Union Thursday negotiated a new contract in efforts to head off a strike. The last contract expired Oct. 1. Members of Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Assn. Local 24 were voting on whether to authorize a strike July 30, the end of a 30-day cooling off period. Paul Rogers, Ozark vice president for marketing, said a strike would shut down operations. Ozark serves 57 cities in 16 states, mostly in the Midwest, and in a majority of the cities, provides the only commercial air service. The last strike by mechanics halted Ozark's operations for 11 weeks in 1973.

'No-fault insurance needs test'

No-fault auto insurance needs more testing and only continued state-experimentation can provide it, the president of the nation's largest insurance trade association told a Senate committee this week. Testifying before the Senate Commerce Committee on S. 1381, the federal no-fault standards bill, Arthur C. Mertz said actual experience in the 24 states that have adopted various forms of no-fault had raised many questions about the operation of those laws. Mertz is president of the Des Plaines-based National Assn. of Independent Insurers, whose 405 member companies write more than 40 per cent of the auto insurance in the U.S.

Amex won't build in Connecticut

The American Stock Exchange has eliminated Connecticut from consideration as a site for relocation, chairman Paul Kolton said Thursday. This leaves the exchange with two proposals, one from New York City offering a choice of several sites in lower Manhattan, and one from the state of New Jersey, which would create a public authority to build a headquarters for the Amex in Jersey City. Kolton said distance from New York and relatively high moving costs dictated the decision by the Amex board of governors to drop the Connecticut proposal.

Trading heavy, Dow gains 1.30

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chips were winners Thursday while the rest of the stock market struggled for direction amid favorable earnings reports and some disappointing economic news. Trading was heavy.

Early selling was triggered by news June's Consumer Price Index rose a higher-than-expected 7.2 per cent annual rate. The second-quarter CPI rose at an 8.1 per cent rate, down from the 10 per cent in the first. Both were ahead of the 4.2 per cent rate in 1976's fourth quarter.

Some investors were disappointed the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported the second-quarter Gross National Product rose 6.4 per cent, down from the revised 7.5 per cent growth registered in the first quarter. A number of economists had predicted a 7 per cent second-quarer increase.

Nevertheless, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, down 3 points in the early afternoon because of profit taking, rallied to gain 1.30 points to 921.78. The index has gained 18.76 points in five sessions, including 1.21 Wednesday.

However, the New York Stock Exchange Common Stock Index lost 0.09 to 55.64 and the average price of a share decreased by 5 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.14 to 101.59.
